ARC A DE

Mary Grey and Tully Marshall in the Charming Play "Let Katy Do It" A pretty story of a young girl, who introduced seven bright little children, and her reward, is told in the Fine Arts-Triangle story, "Let Katy Do It" which comes to the Arcade Sunday. Katy Standish is a family drudge on a New England farm. Her father and mother die. She then lives with her married sister. In rapid succession seven children are born to the sister. The parents are killed by a train. Katy teaches school to aid in supporting her little flock, of which she is the foster mother. Dan Standish, who is the uncle of Katy, sends for her and the children. She goes to his mine in Mexico. With Dan is Oliver Putnam, a former sweetheart of Katy. The girl gets angry with him, because he doesn't like the children. While the older people are away on an errand of mercy, Mexicans attack the little home at the mine. One of the children escapes and aid is summoned. Before the cowboys arrive, however, the children shoot off guns and discharge mines that surround the house, keeping the attackers at bay. Then help arrives. Oliver is pleased at the plucky work of the children. He and Katy are reconciled and make a happy home for the flock in the States. One of the most pleasing features of this picture is the acting of the Triangle Kiddies. These little tots, ranging in age from three and four months to ten or eleven years do a great deal of the important acting and the results are delightful.

Was He a Coward or Hero Led by Fate?

An interesting question is raised in the five-reel Metro-Kolfe production, "The Brand of Cowardice," in which Lionel Barrymore and Grace Valentine are co-stars, and which will be seen here at the Sherry theatre on Sunday and Monday. Sherry Cyril Van Cordlandt Hamilton, officer in a crack militia regiment, refuses to go to the border when the troops are called out, and Marcia West, his fiancée, returns his engagement ring and calls him a coward. She then goes to the border with her father, an officer in the regular army. Stung by the girl's contempt he enlists as a private. On the border he fights and whips a corporal who is about to shoot a fleeing Indian prisoner, and then deserts and goes to Mexico with the Indian.

Meantime Marcia, horseback riding, stumbles into a crowd of Mexican bandits whose leader is in love with her, and she is kidnapped. Cyril, learning of the outrage, sends the Indian after the American troops and goes alone to the village of the bandits, where he rescues Marcia after a desperate battle in which he is seriously wounded. Marcia's love for him is reawakened by his great bravery, and they are married.

Was Captain Hamilton a coward? Or was he a hero? Or was he both? The play presents an interesting problem.

Cove News Items. Cove, Dec. 9.—(Special)—Ed Van Vlack whose home was recently destroyed by fire refurnished his new house and moved into same this week. Mrs. Van Vlack visited her parents Mr. and Mrs. White during the course of construction of the new house. Roy Baker went to Enterprise Tuesday morning on horseback to get the remainder of his stock which he left on the range when he moved here. He reports four inches of snow at Minam and the roads hard to travel. The Ladies' Aid will meet with Mrs. Eckersley next week Wednesday to quilt. All members are earnestly re-

BLANCHE SWEET IN "THE STORM"

BLANCHE SWEET IN "THE STORM" (LASKY)

Coming to Arcade Monday and Tuesday.

Thomas Meighan and Theodore Roberts star with Blanche Sweet at Arcade Monday and Tuesday.

As a harum-scarum child of nature, light-hearted and carefree, Blanche Sweet will be seen at the Arcade Monday and Tuesday in the thrilling Lasky production of "The Storm," a Paramount picture. The scenes of this unusual drama were laid in the Main woods and Miss Sweet is seen as a daughter of an absent-minded, retired old professor.

How she falls in love—a cloud is cast over her life, only to be dispelled by the man her heart desires is unfolded and explained in an intense and interesting manner.

Miss Sweet is surrounded by a cast of famous players, headed by Thomas Meighan who recently scored such a success as leading man for Marie Dora in "Common Ground," and who is one of the most popular of the Lasky players. America's leading character actor, Theodore Roberts, and other members of the all-star Lasky organization including Richard Sterling and Chandler House are also included in the cast.
