SHERRY'S

Valeska Suratt Stars in Story of Vengeance.

A motive of revenge, which leads a woman to seek the unhappiness of her husband by humiliating her own unknown daughter, gives a startling and vivid background to the work which Valeska Suratt does for William Fox in her new picture, "The Straight Way." Miss Suratt plays Mary Madison, a woman who has been wronged by her husband, and cannot forgive.

When the story begins, Mary's relations with another man are unjustly suspected by her husband. He casts her off, and she, heartbroken, leaves her baby daughter in the care of a sister. Later, when the husband—John Madison (Herbert Heyes) hears that Mary has been killed in a railroad wreck he takes the daughter into his home.

Many years after, Mary hears that Madison has been elected governor of his state. She determines to have her vengeance on him for wrecking her life. She makes a plot with Dan Walters (Glen White), a former convict. Walters is to marry Madison's daughter, Marion (Elsie Balfour). Mary does not know that Marion is her own child, but believes she is Madison's daughter by a second marriage.

After the marriage of Walters and Marion, Mary goes to Madison and tells him the whole story. Then he informs her that Marion was her own daughter.

Mary sees then that her plot has acted as boomerang. Her only child has become the bride of an ex-convict. But the situation is cleared when subsequent events prove that Walters had been innocent of the crime for which he was punished, and had gone to prison for a friend.

ARCADE

Marie Doro Coming.

The inhabitants of the little island of St. Batiste still mete out justice as their forefathers did two centuries ago. There are no jails, judges or juries in the island, but punishment is administered by the "Prefect" or governor, with a long, many-thonged whip.

This is the theme for the Jesse L. Lasky production of "The Lash," which will be the Paramount attraction at the Arcade on Friday and Saturday, with the beautiful and captivating Marie Doro as the star.

How one of the daughters of this quaint little island, now a favorite of fashionable society, meets out this punishment to one of her own sex who seeks to steal the affections of her husband, is depicted in a graphic and startling manner.

In the all-star cast supporting Miss Doro are Elliott Dexter, James Neill, Thomas Delmar, Raymond Hatton, Veda McEvers and Jane Wolff.

O.-W. EMPLOYEE PASSES AWAY

Well-known Pendleton Man Victim of Heart Disease Yesterday Noon.

Pendleton, Dec. 14.—(Special)—George R. Sawyer, for the past 18 months a resident of Pendleton, dropped dead at his home, 302 Garden street, about 11 o'clock yesterday noon, death being ascribed to heart failure. He had not been feeling well for some time, but yesterday resumed his position with the O.-W. R. & N. Co.

He had complained in the morning of not feeling well to his daughter, but it was not thought he was seriously ill. About 11 o'clock his daughter found his lifeless body lying on the bed. A physician was hastily summoned but death had already been there first.

Mr. Sawyer was a civil engineer by occupation and for 16 years had served as a county engineer in Washington, eight years in Lincoln county and eight years in Franklin. He retired from office holding in Pasco four years ago. He came to Pendleton about a year and a half ago.

Deceased is survived by a daughter, Miss Mary Sawyer of this city, three sons, Tom and Harry of Pasco, and A. Sawyer of Spokane, and a brother in Kalispell, Mont. He was about 55 years old.
