Talbot. There is a little boy, Gordon Griffith, who plays opposite to little Miss Rae who leads a coterie of juveniles numbering more than a score. In numerous scenes these children carry the entire action, and all through the play there are episodes in which this remarkable assemblage of youthful cleverness vie with their elders in producing entertaining results. As an attraction of strong appeal to women and children "Gloriana" could not have a superior; and at the same time the plot is so interesting and well played that every type and age of "picture fan" will be immensely pleased with the combination of fine acting and beautiful photography.

ARCADE

W. S. HART IN SPECTACULAR PLAY OF ANCIENT AZTECS

Triangle Star Seen in Striking Role, Differing Widely from His Western Characterizations.

William S. Hart will be seen at the Arcade theatre, Wednesday and Thursday, in the long-awaited Triangle "Aztec story," "The Captive God." This play is from the pen of Monte M. Katterjohn and offers Hart in a role that is totally unlike anything he ever has attempted since his desertion of the footlights for the film studio. The part is that of a stalwart Spaniard, who, shipwrecked in the early part of the sixteenth century, is adopted by the people of Tehuan, in ancient Mexico, and made their leader because of his superior wisdom.

Never since he first entered the motion picture fold has Thomas H. Ince bent his efforts toward the production of a drama like "The Captive God." He has preferred to let pass untouched that period of the world's history which contains some of the most interesting and unusual romances ever written. But when Katterjohn wrote "The Captive God" Ince saw in it the possibilities of a remarkable motion picture play.

With his customary care, Ince has incorporated a great amount of detail into this subject, and the result is a magnificent spectacle-romance. Its scenes are rich with the picturesqueness that abounded in the Aztec country, and its action is tense with dramatic situations.

In the titular role, Hart is declared to have rendered another fascinating performance that will establish him still more firmly in the popular favor. He appears, it is true, as a chaps and sombrero and six-shooter, but his magnetism is as powerful as ever.

The cast that appears in support of Hart includes: Enid Markey, D. D. Tabler, Dorothy Dalton, Robert McKim, Dorcas Matthews, Herbert Farjean and Robert Kortman.

A Lady Who Advertised a Town

When Binghamton, New York, desired to attract neighboring citizens to the town, a young lady was selected to visit other towns and see what made them attractive, boosting, at the same time, Binghamton. The result of her experiences are published in the January American Magazine and the writer of the fact, says:

"Miss McCormick declares that her work was the most educative of any campaign she ever tackled. She would be justified in setting up shop herself on the strength of the knowledge she gained.

"Won't you give us a list of some of these things you learned about people? asked a merchant. "We can use em in our business."

"Sure," replied Miss McCormick, with her most demure smile. And this is what she wrote down:

1. Keep human; business depends on the human equation.
2. Courtesy is the first law of business.
3. The knowledge of a woman's name is the open sesame to her confidence.
4. Don't expect interest if you are not ready show it.
5. Artistic display of goods is half the sale.
6. Every dollar invested in a good clerk will return a hundredfold.
7. A good location is money in the bank.
8. Variety is the spice of shopping.
9. Price, style and quality are all greatly to be cherished, but the greatest of these is style.

SHERRY'S

About "Gloriana."

There was a woman of great wealth, aristocratic and austere, who liked to believe that she was a great philanthropist and leader in charitable movements. She devoted every spare moment of her time to her hobby—but in all she did foreign missions and charity for people of distant lands was her sole purpose. Right at her door there was the suffering poor and needy; but she held aloof from giving aid and even denied one of her own servants an advance on her salary when complying meant a matter of life and death.

There came into her home a little child, orphaned and adopted by the man of the house against the wife's wishes. How this little girl brought light into the darkness of this haughty woman's ideas of charity will be told in an immensely interesting moving picture to be exhibited at the Sherry theatre today and tomorrow, in the Bluebird series under the title of "Gloriana," with little Zoe Rae playing the role of the child.

This feature is one of the rare instances where a little child has been made the star of a photoplay. Owing to the nature of the subject an exceptionally talented child was required to carry the theme through five difficult acts. The fact that little Zoe Rae was available made the production possible, for a child less clever than this talented youngster could not be employed. In the supporting company are a dozen mature actors and actresses, including William Canfield, John A. Cook, Virginia Foltz, Clarissa Selwynne, Irene Hunt and Mary

January first the Pure Milk & Cream company will begin business, retailing milk and cream scrupulously guarded and protected from the moment it leaves the udder until it is bottled and sealed in sterilized containers. Machinery necessary to scientific cooling and bottling are now being installed in the Thornton building at 1708 Sixth street. From that point milk will be delivered to the customers or retailed at the window after January first. From time to time during the next week the public will be advised further of the working details of the firm, and of the process adopted to guarantee milk and cream free from contamination and disease. It will be a vital message to every household.
