SHERRY'S

SHERRY'S LAST DAY

Driving Automobile Is Hardest Work He Knows.

Harry Hilliard's new auto insists on getting him into trouble. The latest affair which occurred while Harry was working in "The Ragged Princess," took place on the Forty-second street ferry.

Hilliard was on his way to the William Fox studios. When he got to the ferry he drove intrepidly ahead, until an interfering policeman called to him to stop.

"You're on the wrong side of the safety lines," the man said, "you'll have to back over to the other side."

Harry had driven his car exactly three and a half times, and backing had not yet been called for in all this experience. He thought for an instant, remembered his book of instructions, then began the process of backing. One of the white safety posts toppled beneath his wheel.

"Stop!" the interfering policeman cried, "you'll destroy our signals."

Hilliard stopped. Then the interfering policeman obligingly rushed into the breach, and uprooted the white posts. It became necessary to take four of the six away before the hero of a dozen movies could extricate himself and his car. Now Harry has a philosophy of work.

"People say the movies are harassing," says the actor. "They say the task of jumping into lakes and off of buildings is dangerous. They say it is irritating to work all day in the hot studios during the summer months. But people who say such things have never driven an automobile."

Sloan's Liniment Eases Pain.

Sloan's Liniment is first thought of mothers for bumps, bruises and sprains that are continually happening to children. It quickly penetrates and soothes without rubbing. Cleaner and more effective than mussy plasters or ointments. For rheumatic aches, neuralgia pain and that grippy soreness after colds, Sloan's Liniment gives prompt relief. Have a bottle handy for bruises, strains, sprains and all external pain. For the thousands whose work calls them outdoors, the pains and aches following exposure are relieved by Sloan's Liniment. Stomach Trouble and Constipation.

Those who are afflicted with stomach trouble and constipation should read the following: "I have never found anything so good for stomach trouble and constipation as Chamberlain's Tablets. I have used them off and on now for the past two years. They not only regulate the action of the bowels but stimulate the liver and keep one's body in a healthy condition," writes Mrs. Benjamin Hooper, Auburn, N. Y.

Smart Afternoon Gown

The handsome afternoon gown here-with shown is featured in georgette crape and French satin in light gray, old rose, tan, burgundy, navy blue, black, Joffre or copenhagen blue. The bodice and upper part of skirt are of georgette crape embroidered in gold and self colored silk. The under bodice is of silver lace and the crushed girde of satin. Design by Franklin Simon & Co., New York city.

Household Suggestions

When ironing blouses or frocks with large buttons sewed on try using several thicknesses of blanket or towels to iron them on. Turn the garment button side down and press on the wrong side.

Add an equal quantity of boiling water when pouring hot fat into a bowl. This will make any pieces of meat and gristle in the fat sink to the bottom, and the drippings, when cool, will be white and clean.

To remove whitewash from carpets, dampen the spots with a mixture of a teaspoonful of ammonia in one gallon of warm water.

The disagreeable taste of castor oil may be concealed by giving the dose in hot milk flavored with salt and a sprinkle of black pepper.

Add a little drop of salad oil to mustard when it is being made. Not only will it improve the taste, but it will keep it fresh for days.

Uses of Saleratus

When cooking meats and vegetables a little saleratus will hasten their cooking and make them tender.

A little saleratus added to beans before they are put in the oven to bake makes them more digestible.

To sweeten meats wash in saleratus before they are cooked.

To remove fruit or tea stains use saleratus moistened with sweet milk.

To make clothes look white add a liberal quantity of saleratus to the water in which clothes are soaked, and the clothes will not require so much rubbing.

To keep baby's bottle sweet rinse with water in which saleratus has been dissolved.

To keep kitchen sinks clean and sweet use saleratus freely.

A small quantity of saleratus added to the bath is very refreshing.

GOOD RESOLUTIONS.

- On New Year's day I will resolve
- To be as good as gold;
- I'll never say an ugly word,
- I'll do just as I'm told.
- I'll help my mother clean the house,
- I'll share my toys with Joe,
- I'll never fuss or frown or fret,
- On errands I will go
- I'll make the sunshine in our house,
- Though it may storm outside.
- When things go wrong to make me cross,
- My feelings I will hide.
- I'll be so good mamma will say
- I fill her heart with joy,
- And when she'll say her prayers at night
- She'll bless her little boy.

ARCADE

"WITCHCRAFT"

Lasky Production of Prize-Winning Scenario Offered by Paramount—Reviewed by Thomas C. Kennedy in Motography.

"Witchcraft," R. Ralston Reed's story which won the prize offered by the Lasky company for original photoplays written by students of the photoplay at Columbia University, is at once a good vehicle for Fannie Ward and a romantic drama of marked appeal. It will be shown at the Arcade, today and tomorrow.

Taken as a whole "Witchcraft" is a superior offering. It is better than the average feature by a good margin. Miss Ward has the best opportunity since "The Cheat," and she gives a star performance. She is cast as the daughter of an ailing woman who is accused of witchcraft by the people in the small New England colony where they take up their residence. Suzette and her mother are Huguenot refugees and the fact that they are foreigners only adds to their unpopularity in the village.

Suzette and Richard Wayne become attached to each other but they part when he leaves for Boston to be a soldier. During his absence Suzette is forced to marry an old miser in order to save her mother from the toils of the deluded people who believe in witchcraft. It is an unhappy marriage for Suzette, and an unnecessary one. For her mother dies on the day of the wedding. Wayne returns, but on finding Suzette married he thinks it best to leave again, as his affections for her is strong. Later Suzette is accused of being a witch and she is about to be hung when Captain Wayne arrives carrying a proclamation from the governor putting such practices down for all time.

Frank Reichter directed the production. The direction and the production are of a high order of quality and they materially add to the appeal of the picture. The flashes of Suzette dressed as a boy on her trip through the woods to call the aid of the soldiers deserve special mention. They are beautiful and eloquently life-like scenes.

Paul Weigel is excellent as Makepeace Struble, the miser. Jack Dean in the heroic role and Lillian Leighton as the Indian woman are satisfactory. The name of the little girl who tells fancied tales of what she saw at the Indian woman's cabin to a group of children and accuses Suzette at the trial is not given in the cast, but just the same she is a remarkably fine little actress and she will attract much notice by her playing in this production. "Witchcraft," to sum up, is an admirable Lasky offering.
