postoffice building. Since January 2, the first day of the opening to entry of pasture and non-timber lands in Grant, Umatilla and Wallawa counties, there have been 421 applications, an average of 40 each day, $25. Each applicant has deposited $25, or a total of $10,525. Approximately 168,000 acres of available land have been applied for. Most of the applicants are filing in person and the register's office force is inadequate to handle the work. The doors are locked, and, one at a time, the land hungry men and women are admitted into the office to take their chance at a 640 acre prize. As the secretary of the interior has not sent the local office regulatory provisions the applications are being received and recorded, but no definite answers are being given applicants.

A special committee will report a measure which it framed for the legislatures of the eleven western states of Utah, Idaho, Montana, Colorado, Wyoming, Arizona, New Mexico, Nevada, Oregon and Washington. A bounty of $2.50 a head will be proposed.

An estimated investment of $100,000,000 was represented by the 1000 members from thirteen western states. President Frank J. Habenbarth, in his annual report, predicted continued high prices for wool, declaring that adverse legislation, the reduction in ranges, the foreign outlook and bullish conditions generally have resulted in a large reduction in the size of flocks.

Today Galbraith has three German fliers to his credit, and is the owner of a French Croix de Guerre, pinned to his breast by the President after he had sent a fast 'Fokker' flaming to the ground, 40 miles inside the Teuton lines. He also has received special mention for conspicuous gallantry in Imperial despatches.

In a cheery boyish letter he tells saw a German machine 500 feet below. I turned and ran away so he would chase me. He was faster than I, and soon was under my tail, about 500 feet below me.

"Then I looped 'round behind him emptied 36 shots into his machine before his first exploit. He wrote: 'Yesterday two Germans were reported not far from here and I was sent up after them. In an hour and a half I was flying at 12,500 feet and fore he noticed me. He did a vertical nose dive for a thousand feet and then caught fire and fell into the sea 10,000 feet below.

"So I have had my first fight in the air and got my man! Gosh! I was excited Mother, and when I was coming back to the 'drome' I did all kinds of stunts and all my spare ammunition fell out when I was upside down.' He has been in active service exactly six months.

Method of Cleaning Silver Without Rubbing

An easy and effective method of cleaning tarnished silverware by boiling in a soda and salt solution in contact with a clean piece of aluminum or zinc is recommended to housewives by the United States department of agriculture as a result of studies made by its specialists in home economics.

The electrolytic cleaning method depends on the facts that this tarnish of silver sulphid is lightly soluble in the hot solution employed and that it is broken down chemically and its silver content redeposited on the ware when the proper electrical conditions prevail. The presence of both the silver and the aluminum or zinc in the hot solution provides the necessary electrical conditions. Under this method, therefore, practically all the silver in the tarnish is returned to the object being cleaned. When silver polishes are used, on the other hand, all the silver in combination in the tarnish is removed.

In the cleaning method recommended by the department the necessary materials are a graniteware cooking utensil deep enough to allow the silverware to be covered by the solution. A clean piece of aluminum or zinc, preferably the former, and baking or washing soda. The solution, consisting of a teaspoonful of baking or washing soda and a like amount of table salt to each quart of water, is brought to a boil in a graniteware or enameled utensil. A sheet of aluminum or clean zinc is dropped in. The tarnished silverware is then immersed in the solution so that it is in contact with the sheet of aluminum or zinc. The tarnish should disappear in a few seconds. The silver object should then be removed from the solution, rinsed and dried with a soft cloth. Aluminum is much more satisfactory than zinc for use in this cleaning process.

WILLARD NEEDS MORE FIGHTING

Must Box Offener to Retain Good Form.

GYMNASIUM BOXING HURTS

Any Fighter Who Tries It For Any Length of Time Loses His Punch, Due to Pulling in Sparring With Partner.

How long can Jess Willard remain out of the ring and still retain his reputation of being invincible? During the last three years Willard has taken part in two bouts, one with Jack Johnson and the other the ten round affair with Frank Moran. That is not nearly enough work to keep a fighting man in shape to do his best work. It is a rule with few exceptions that when a boxer retires for as long as a year he loses 50 per cent of his form. Jack Johnson was no exception to this rule, although Johnson was a natural boxer who needed less practice than the average govtman. Willard is strictly a manufactured boxer. He is not by nature a fighting man, and it was only by laborious practice that he acquired whatever amount of ability he possesses.

Willard says the boxing he does every day during the circus season keeps him in good shape. But the champion's circus boxing is strictly a joke. It merely gives his two-minute rounds and lets his sparring mate do all the work at that. Gymnasium boxing has ruined every fighter who tried it for any length of time. It gets him in the habit of pulling his punches. Willard showed in his bout with Moran that it was beginning to get in its work. He fought Moran as though he were boxing a sparring partner instead of defending a championship. Instead of stopping his man, Willard merely boxed defensively when he should have been forcing the fight. He followed the tactics learned in the gymnasium, which are altogether different from those used in the ring.

Then, too, Willard is said to have grown so fat that it is by no means certain that he will ever enter the ring again. However, it is becoming evident that he must do something in the boxing line this winter if he hopes to continue as an attraction with the circus. Of late the spectators of his abbreviated sparring skits have taken to hooting at the place where the cheering should commence, according to reports.

There are certain signs that the title holder is about to indulge in a scrap of some sort. According to the advance word, he will face either Fred Fulton or Charley Weinert. Weinert probably will get the chance if, as seems probable, Frank Moran flattens the gawky Rochester giant when they come together in a few weeks.

Willard would no doubt prefer Fulton, who still looks very soft to Weinert, who is a good boxer and very fast, even if he is not much of a hitter. In ten rounds Weinert might cause the champion a great deal of trouble. Of course Fulton's title would be safe enough if the bout were held in a no decision center, but it might be different if it took place in the Tia Juana or some place where the referee would be allowed to hand down a decision.

A Spare Leg.

Jones was old fashioned and stuck to old fashioned ways. Smith was modern and bought a fine new automobile. One day he was proudly exhibiting it to some friends when Jones came along. "Um," remarked Jones as he sized up the handsome machine. "What's that thing there on the side?" "That's a spare rim and tire," answered Smith. "We always carry an extra one in case one of the wheels goes wrong." "Just as I always said," was the response of Jones. "I've driven hosses for nigh on fifty years, and I never had to carry a spare leg for one of them yet."—Country Gentleman.

Not Her Celebration.

Old Zeb Jackson, the champion whitewasher, walked down the main street of the village one morning dressed in his best suit, with a large, brilliant boutonhole bouquet and cotton gloves on his big hands. "Hello, Zeb!" said the postman. "Are you taking a holiday?" "Dish yere," said the old man, with a proud wave of his huge hand—"I wish yere am mah golding wedding anniversary, sah. Ah'm celebratin' hist." "But your wife," said the postman. "Is working as usual. I saw her at the washin' as I passed your house." "Got nuffin' ter-do wif hit. She ain't got'n'."—Country Gentleman.

The Usurper.

Every night since he arrived at his summer boarding house the occupant of the small but airy room on the rear ground floor of the farmhouse had been annoyed by a large pig trying to gain entrance to his whimsy domicile. "Why is that pig always trying to go into my room?" inquired the summer boarder of the hired man one morning. "Do you think he has taken a fancy to me?" "It's his room during the winter," whispered the hired man cautiously.

Getting Up.

Getting up three hundred and sixty-five times a year as we do, a person would think we'd get used to it. But we don't.

Not even with bellboys, alarm clocks, cold water, wives waiting breakfast and other pernicious inventions to egg us on, we don't.

Folks have been getting up ever since the world began; and they don't like it any better now than they did the morning Cain slew Abel.

It's just as easy to keep a good man down as it is to get him up.

About the only way to keep from getting up is to lie down and die. And that doesn't always work. Look at Lazarus.

I Am The Unimproved Highway

BY H. G. ANDREWS.

(In the William Penn Highway Bulletin, Harrisburg, Penna. Copyright, 1916, by the William Penn Highway Association.)

I am the unimproved highway. My name is Mud! The feet that pattered in primeval slime gave me birth. Unchanged while the ages passed, I have endured. Time has but served to increase my infinite variety. Earth-born, and from a soul, yet have I lived. Without the beginning have I been man's enemy. A dust-colored python am I, stretching my length across the hills, waiting my time to crush endeavor. I have endeavored. Time has but served to increase my infinite variety.
