Eastern Oregon Weather Seems Mild to Alaska Musher

Mrs. Pearl Howard, Formerly Miss Pearl Craton of Cove, Tells of Wind Blowing 200 Miles Hour—She Traveled 500 Miles in 85 Hours With a Dog Team—Wears Beaver Fur Coat Worth $700.

It used to be cold in Cove and La Grande for Mrs. Pearl Howard some years ago when she was Miss Pearl Craton, but she doesn't mind ten degrees above zero and a 25-mile wind now. For up near the Arctic Circle where she and her husband have lived since 1905 she is used to 60 degrees below zero and to wind that turns her dog team and 350-pound, loaded sled around and shoves sled, team and all before it. "I don't know how hard it blows but I have made up my mind to say 200 miles an hour," said Mrs. Howard, who was in the city yesterday on her way to visit with her brother, J. W. Craton, in Cove.

To get from Tanana to Chitna, 500 miles, took Mrs. Howard 85 actual traveling hours last month though she was on the road with her five dogs and sled for parts of 12 days. She "mushed" the entire trail, alone, and unafraid, for she has traveled alone considerably in the last six years in the Alaskan white wilderness. Sometimes the keen scent of her lead dog was the only thing that stood between her and death. People sometimes, in the blinding snow storms, have perished within 300 feet of the roadhouses.

Mrs. Howard wore clothes and jewelry yesterday which made La Grande women look two or three times. For instance, there is her baby beaver fur coat for which she has refused $700. Then there are two necklaces, one a plain nugget and the other a nugget and ivory necklace. In her pocket-book she carries a $60 gold nugget. All the gold comes from her husband's and her own property.

Mrs. Howard was the guest yesterday of Mr. and Mrs. Hal Rees, friends of her childhood. She left this morning for Cove to visit her brother and will leave within a few days for Pendleton to see her mother, Mrs. Emma S. Brown. From Pendleton she will go to California to join her husband and then they will visit in Honolulu.

Mrs. Howard is glad to get back to the Grande Ronde valley. "I have seen more people I knew this trip than on any recent one and it is pleasant," she said.

"Next winter I am coming out again and will study wireless. I am fascinated with the wireless. Oftentimes I have been permitted to listen at the Alaskan wireless stations and one time I heard San Francisco talking to Honolulu. That, particularly, fired my ambition."

The Drifting Snow

BY MRS. EUNICE WHEELER PROCTOR

It ceaseth to fall directly.
Onward it comes in leaps and bounds
Each furious gust chasing the other
Like a coney pursued by hounds.
Chasing and driving and darting,
Hither and thither by chance—
Backward or forward, now starting
Again on its frolicsome prance.
Lightly it whirls around corners
Starting again in the fray—
Frothing and foaming and charging
Fiercer it darts than an arrow
Shot from an archer's great bow;
Now lifting higher now lower,
Steading for one great blow.
It striketh with deadly terror,
It bites and stings in its course,
It battles with all in its pathway,
Blinding all meeting its force.
Roaring and chasing and thund'ring
Onward it soars with a rush.
'Til the wind changes more Northly
Then advances again with a gust.
Hours—onward it races and howls,
Until by some lucky chance;
Boreas changes his courses—
Then it slowly lays down its lance.
—La Grande, Oregon, Feb. 1, 1917.

No Crime is Proved, Man is Put in Jail

Toledo, O., Feb. 2.—(United Press)—Police and the courts of Toledo are enforcing a city ordinance that permits the fining or imprisonment of a man though no specific offense is proved against him.

Clyde Arnold, 22, arrested on suspicion of taking part in a holdup, was found guilty of being a "known thief" and fined $25 and costs. Evidence on which Arnold was convicted was that he had previously been arrested five times for theft.

Police Judge Austin today defended the ordinance. Others declared it unconstitutional.

"It is not the purpose of this ordinance to persecute anyone," said Judge Austin. "A man's mode of living must be considered. If he has no apparent means of support and lives in the underworld, and suspicion of theft points his way, even if detectives are unable to 'get the goods on him,' he should be convicted."
