Inconspicuous Heroism Is Basis of British Valor

English Are a Reserved People and Stories of Their Heroes Are Hard to Get—Lieutenant of Flying Corps Downs An Opponent But Gets No Mention—All For the Glory of the British Army Is the Motto.

BY WILLIAM PHILIP SIMMS (United Press Staff Correspondent.) With the British Armies in the Field, Jan. 4.—(By Mail.)—The world knows the English as a race of enermously reserved people. Just how reserved they really are one must live out here to realize. The most thrilling engagement of the war does not loosen the Englishman's tongue any more than his afternoon tea, if as much. I have been trying to get the story of some British heroes. It can't be done. They say what they do belongs to the unit they happen to be in. The unit says the glory belongs to the next higher unit and so on until one is told that the honor belongs to the whole British army. The theory is that it is very unfair for an individual to be signaled as a hero. They say it is not treating the other fellow right for one to be press-agented and heralded all over the world as the doer of a great deed because every day there are hundreds upon hundreds of men who are risking their lives in the deadliest of dangerous undertakings and are never even heard of. Luck, one is told, makes more heroes than anything else—luck which provides the opportunity and luck which lets one be seen while grasping it. The French look at it in much the same way but if anything the British carry the idea further. A French aviator is called an "ace" when he brings down his fifth enemy aeroplane and gets his name in the papers. There are many English airmen who are aces yet whose names have never appeared outside the official secret communiques circulated among the higher staff officers only. Here is a concrete example: A certain lieutenant of the Royal Flying Corps was mentioned in one of these communiques. It seems he had engaged an enemy aeroplane, fought a duel with it among the clouds, and downed it fairly and squarely. Hoping to make an exception of this case permission was sought to use the aviator's name. It was courteously, but firmly, refused. What he had done was not to his own personal glory but to the glory of the R. F. C. And when the Royal Flying Corps is asked about it, it insists the honor is the army's. So it goes. The Canadians pool their glory with the South Africans and the Anzacs and the Irish and the Scotch and all the rest, and altogether they heap it into the lap of Britain. It is trite to say it is a war of anonymous heroes but that is just what it is and the British are so very, very anonymous about it that they run the risk of having the world say they can't be doing very much. Nor do they care, apparently. The idea is that a hero who is a hero because he has an audience is not a real hero. The real thing does a brave act because he can't help doing it, and when it is done his own satisfaction over having done his bit as best he could, without shirking, is the best reward he can have.

Keep Your Eye On Palmer Lands

The last five sales have been from residents who reside away from Grande Ronde valley.

It apparently is the same old story: Home people as a rule do not realize the opportunities that are here.

The first settlers of this valley did not appreciate the value of that large fertile tract we now call the Sandridge. It was the very last land in the valley to be occupied.

A few years from now not a few of those who read these lines will state: "I did not know that Palmer valley would ever be the prosperous country it is."

It will be too late then. The opportunity is now. No experiment. Many families have already demonstrated the productiveness of the soil. You know the location, near railroad, near Elgin, adjoining a forest reserve, which means cheap range for stock and free fuel for all time.

Come in and let us reason together.
