Some employees discuss the business until 9 o'clock in the morning, and don't get any work done until 11 o'clock. Discussing business is not doing business. Other employees don't get organized until noon, and then rush around blindly, and think they are accomplishing a devil of a lot. The employees who get things done are those who begin work early in the morning, work calmly and steadily during the day, and never get excited or in too much of a hurry.—Aitchison Globe.
