Sell It By The Want Ad Route

The Observer's little want ads do the work. It is surprising how many people turn to them every day and how quickly they meet the eye and bring buyer and seller together.

Look over your premises and see what you have to sell. A want ad describing it will hit the mark and turn something you do not need into cash.

Picked Up By The Stroller

Talk about strolling. Daddy Burt and George Young strolled across the track to the shops Saturday night to induce some of the railroad boys to join the Moose and they didn't stroll home until 4 a. m.

I don't hate the knockers like some people do. To me they are the burrs that make the donkey go. If it weren't for the knockers, you wouldn't appreciate the boosters. The knockers add variety and spice to life.

Hope is the old maid's friend.

The man who draws to straights open in the middle is usually the first to buy.

I read in a paper where a butcher at Wirt, Ohio, was shot and instantly killed as he sought entrance to the house of Charles Kilgo. The item says, "It was evidently a mistake for him to attempt to enter the house." I agree that the writer evidently hit the nail on the head.

I never could see the fun of a one-hundred-and-thirty pound fellow having a two-hundred-and-twenty-pound girl sit on his knee. It always seemed to me it ought to be the other way about.

Spring hasn't come yet but there are lots of us who have spring fever. Did you ever have winter fever?

The way of the world: If you make money, you're a grafter. If you don't, you're no good.

Most gossips start out this way, "They are saying this about Mrs. Blank, but I don't believe it."

A Kansas City man coveted his neighbor's wife. So he got her to get a divorce and married her. Then he got tired of her and sued her for divorce. The judge refused to grant it, which was poetic justice. I can imagine how happy it made husband No. 1.

A new kind of "bridge" has hit La Grande. It's called "pirate bridge," where you bid for your partner, sight unseen. I'd hate to have Ray Logan for a partner in this game.

Every newspaper paragrapher in the country has written this: "With the lowly onion at 10 cents a pound, an onion breath is a sign of affluence."

There is one class who approves of the high cost of eggs and cabbage: The ham actor.
