Are You Extravagant? Take Warning From New Petrova Picture.

Are you extravagant? Are your expenses greater than your income? If they are, what will become of you and your loved ones in the future?

All of these questions are strikingly answered in the great Metro-Popular Plays and Players production, "Extravagance," with Mme. Petrova as the star, which will be seen here at the Sherry Theater for the last time tonight.

The play deals with a father and his daughter who fetter themselves by their own extravagance. The father commits forgery. The daughter's suitor, an estimable man, is dragged into the maelstrom of financial ruin. From beginning to end the play is a powerful lesson, and it is filled with Flats.

A flat is a place with no room for expansion, intellectual or chest.

It requires thin furniture and a narrow wife. The rooms are so small you have to walk sideways when you wear your winter clothing. And it's no place for a man with a stomach if you won't want the walls to bulge.

Newly initiated flat dwellers have to be carefully trained so they won't walk out in the back yard and fall off the fire escape.

SECOND CHILDREN'S STORY HOUR HELD

The second story-hour for children conducted by the Neighborhood club and the public schools, was held Saturday afternoon in the children's department of the public library. About 50 children attended, and all thoroughly enjoyed the stories told by Miss Lou Jones and Miss Jennie Cuning. Children from the first grade formed the first group for the story-hour, and those from the second and third grades the second group.

This work was carried on with surprisingly little disturbance to the adult readers, several of whom were interested in staying to watch the little folks.

Probably no other star would have thrown into the part of Norma Russell, the daughter, more realism than has Mme. Petrova, who held a high social position in England and there was enabled to observe the extravagance of many titled folk. In America, too, she encountered extravagance among society people, whose real wealth probably could not be reckoned in more than four figures. Yet these social spendthrifts were struggling desperately to maintain what they considered "a position of prominence" among multi-millionaires.

"Extravagance" is one of the most powerful motion picture dramas of the season. Does the lesson found in it apply to you? See it and give your own answer.

AT ARCADE THEATER TODAY AND TOMORROW

KATHLYN WILLIAMS supported by THOMAS HOLDING IN "REDEEMING LOVE" MOROSCO-PARAMOUNT

ARCADE

KATHLYN WILLIAMS AT THE ARCADE.

"Redeeming Love," a Morosco-Paramount picture which is the attraction at the Arcade Theater today and tomorrow, marks a double stellar debut. Kathlyn Williams, one of the most popular stars on the screen, makes her debut as a Morosco player and Thomas Holding, who co-stars with her, appears for the first time under the banner of that producing company. In the case of Miss Williams, the picture represents her first appearance on the Paramount Program but Mr. Holding has been identified with Famous Players productions ever since he appeared in support of Pauline Frederick in an adaptation of Hall Caine's "The Eternal City." Other important members of the cast are Herbert Standing, Wyndham Standing, Helen Eddy, Jane Keckley and Don Bailey.

"Redeeming Love" is a powerful drama relating the story of a country girl whose beauty fascinates a gambler who comes to her town to rest. She falls in love with him and finally goes to the city where she plunges into the life of a gambler and becomes so imbued with the spirit of the gamemaster that the getting of money becomes her only religion in life.

Before she had left her home, she had been impressed by the personality of John Bancroft, a young minister. While Naomi is perfecting herself in the art of gambling, Bancroft is forging ahead in his chosen field and is becoming famous. He finally comes to the city and wages a great campaign against gambling in which he finds himself pitted against Naomi, who has won his love despite the fact that her mode of life is so appalling to him. In the double conflict between the growing love of these two and their efforts to reconcile themselves to the domination of that love over the natural antipathy which each feels for the other as a representative of the opposite code of morals, there is embodied a big dramatic story.

The tale is not without its thrills for there is one big scene in which a large touring car goes hurtling over a cliff into the sea, carrying with it its passengers. This is one of the most remarkable accident scenes which has been produced on the screen and clearly shows that the big touring car which was used for the purpose was actually sent over the cliff. Though there have been many elab-
