Grain Meetings In County This Week

As a result of the bulk grain meeting held here Friday three grain meetings have been scheduled for Union county towns this week; today at Cove; tomorrow at Elgin, and Wednesday at Imbler. Prof. G. R. Hyslop of O. A. C.; J. D. Brown, president of the state farmers' union; and J. T. Atkinson of Wasco county, president of the Rice-Union Elevator company, will speak at the Cove and Elgin meetings. W. W. Harrah of Pendleton, a grower said to be one of the best informed men on grain handling subjects in the northwest, will be with the above men at the Imbler, all day, open meeting. Mr. Atkinson has handled grain in the bulk the past season and is president of the farmers' elevator at Rice station.

G. Stoddard's Death Delays Bank Plans

The death of George E. Stoddard has halted the plans for a new bank in La Grande. One of the interested men said yesterday: "Mr. Stoddard was the main figure in the plans for the new bank and his death will halt the advent of the bank, if not stop it entirely."

PRESIDENT MAY ARM OUR SHIPS

Washington, March 5.—(United Press)—President Wilson asked the government's legal authorities to decide whether he has power to give the American merchantmen naval armament without special congressional authorization. He wants the decision within 24 hours. He plans to arm merchantmen immediately if he has the power. Otherwise he will call an extra session when the senate completes revising its rules to prevent further filibustering. President Wilson may send the names of all the cabinet members to the senate tomorrow. No changes are contemplated. He probably will submit several other nominations not acted upon at the last session.

EXTRA SESSION SENATE CALLED

Washington, March 5.—(United Press)—The senate met briefly and heard Vice-President Marshall's inauguration address, which was very brief. Marshall swore in fifteen new senators and sixteen re-elected members. The senate adjourned until early this afternoon. It meets again Tuesday noon.

The central powers diplomats failed to join the ambassadorial corps participating in the vice-presidential inauguration. The Allies' diplomats led the procession.

The senate secretary read President Wilson's proclamation, calling an extraordinary senate session for the purpose of revising its rules to prevent filibustering when the armed ship bill is again introduced. Great applause greeted President Wilson.

Bulgaria May Act.

London, March 5.—(United Press)—Bulgarian semi-official press agencies reported that Bulgaria may soon send a note to the United States, announcing her adherence to Germany, and directing the Bulgarian minister to demand his passports.

PLOT TO KILL

was formerly headquarters of German Lieutenant Fay, a confessed bomb plotter against the munitions ships.

Kolb admitted coming to the United States from Germany a month before the war started. He has been in Mexico since. He confessed friends "from Jersey City" assisted him in bomb making. They assembled in his room nightly.

Grande Ronde Lumber company by the board of directors in meeting here this morning. Joseph Stoddard of Baker was named a director and vice-president of the company. Before his death George E. Stoddard was general manager, a director and vice-president of the Grande Ronde Lumber company. Elmer Stoddard of La Grande, son of George E. Stoddard, was selected as assistant general manager of the Grande Ronde Lumber company. J. F. Ravenscroft of Wallowa, treasurer of the Nibley-Minnaugh company, will succeed James H. Minnaugh as general manager of the Wallowa company.

INAUGURAL

From the president's appearance

As the president, however, facing the chief justice, repeated the words permitted only to the nation's highest, the applause seemed to die away, and as the first citizen raised his hand in solemn assent, there was silence among the thousands.

Soon, however, the crowd burst the leashes of reserve and as the president stepped forward to deliver his inaugural address—his second—he was forced to pause to acknowledge the tribute.

Following his address, the president, Mrs. Wilson, and the vice-president and Mrs. Marshall returned up Pennsylvania avenue at a brisk gallop to the White House where they were refreshed by a light luncheon before entering the reviewing stand.

At the president's departure from the capitol, the great procession started to form and move slowly westward toward the executive mansion.
