LOCAL BOYS JOIN U. S. MARINE CORPS

Clarence J. Lambert, Horace E. Price and Benjamin C. Gekeler were accepted for enlistment in the U. S. Marine Corps, at the local recruiting station in the postoffice, Saturday. The three young men were transferred to Portland Sunday night. A number of their friends were down to the depot to see them depart, and if good wishes and parting advice will help them, they will surely get along fine in the service of Uncle Sam. Horace Price is an automobile mechanic. He will undergo the regular recruit training at Mare Island, California, as will both Lambert and Gekeler. After this training he intends to apply for duty with the transportation department as a truck and armored-car mechanic. Gekeler intends to devote his time to electricity, and will make application to enter the electrician school.

ANTIQUATED SETS OF DICKENS SELL FAST

London, March 12.—(United Press)—London's anti-Zeppelin darkness has put the bookseller on "easy street." Antiquated sets of Dickens and others find a ready sale among the Canadians who read up during the dark hours and reserve the daylight to visit the places that Dickens wrote about. Novels of all kinds are also good sellers. Poetry is popular, together with detective stores, especially Sherlock Holmes.
