INFORMATION TO BE FURNISHED.

The Oregon State Good Roads campaign headquarters will prepare at the earliest possible date information as follows, to answer questions asked with reference to the proposed bond issue:

Mileage of roads that can be paved with the funds available under the bill. Cost to the counties of preparing the roadbeds for paving.

Mileage of forest and post roads to be constructed.

Sources of revenue for paying interest and principal on all the bond.

Amount of money available for other road construction by the state.

Amount of county taxes released from cost of constructing and maintaining state highways, thus permitting their use in improving county and local roads and laterals.

Correction of the mistaken statements made that from $30,000,000 to $50,000,000 will be required to do the work specified in the bonding act. These statements are so unwarranted by the facts that it will be easy to refute them by a fair and square presentation of the facts.

Correction of other erroneous statements made, based chiefly on misunderstanding of the bill in relation to the other legislative acts governing state highway expenditures.

Other statistical information such as taxpayers very properly require.

This information will be issued as rapidly as it can be compiled and funds gathered to defray the cost of its preparation and dissemination.

Sometime or other the people of this country will have to take up and devote their minds to a study of the problem of why young men do not marry. There seems to be a tendency these days for young men to postpone marriage until reasonably well along in years. This is forcing more and more young women to enter the walks of business life. It is noticeable though that marriage is an aid to young men. They need helpmates. Many a successful man will tell you that his wife's aid, counsel and steady influence helped him win the battle of life. Any young man who has health, courage, and a fair start in life should get married. Let him pick a girl with brains and feathers and start in and make a battle for a home of his own. If he succeeds in making his wife and family happy, even if he does not accumulate much of the world's goods, he will have accomplished enough of value to entitle him to the good name of "a real man."

The Interesting Thing for You to Consider

When you purchase a pair of shoes it is not their looks alone which should interest you. You should know above all else that they have the quality. There are beautiful shoes which are worthless. If you are a wearer of our shoes you have every assurance of both beauty of style and the utmost shoe value. You cannot buy one without the other at this store, for we have built up our business around merchandise of this kind and could not afford to change our policy.

Motorcycle Riders Will Volunteer For Military Service

The motorcycle riders of the United States do not intend to be left behind in any preparedness campaign that may result from the present international crisis.

Already there is a well organized movement on foot to start a company of motorcycle volunteers in every community in which 25 or more riders can be gathered into a company.

The promoters of the plan have received an unqualified endorsement of the value of the motorcycle in military organization from the war department. Ralph A. Hayes, private secretary to Secretary of War Baker, in an answer to a letter written Secretary Baker outlining the plan for the organization of motorcycle volunteers, says:

"Doubtless in case the present crisis should unhappily become more acute, the services of motorcyclists would be very necessary and valuable.

The experience of the contending forces on the other side of the ocean demonstrates that motorcycle forces can and must be used for service which would be less satisfactorily performed by any other branch of the service."

Captain Davis, assistant quartermaster in charge of the entire southern district, in a recent interview said of the motorcycle forces on the Mexican border:

"Motorcycles have proved very satisfactory in service on the border. All of the officers want them and if war should come we will have to have very many more of them."

With these endorsements it is believed that it will not be difficult to interest the riders to form local organizations so that they will at least be partially prepared should their country need them.
