EDITORIAL COMMENT

Room For Improvement.
Oregon is to vote bonds for good roads. There is a general impression that one of its lanes needs fixing—Pacific Semaphore.

La Grande has modified the general "drive-out" plan relative to Chinese residents, and is notifying the bad Chinamen to leave the city. This is probably a better way. The better class of Chinamen are reported helping in the work and have contributed to a purse to aid the woman accidentally shot by a Chinaman in front of the postoffice last week—Weekly Republican.

Paying $10 per cwt. for unborn lambs, to be delivered next fall, is another demonstration of confidence that the high prices will last for some time. Do not be persuaded into contracting your lamb crop and lose your profits; you may need them.—Live Stock Reporter.

Weather Is Menace To Stock.

If the stormy weather of the fore part of the week continues much longer, it will work great damage to the stock and sheep throughout the whole of Eastern Oregon. With the sheep in the midst of the lambing season and with feed of all kinds practically gone the wintry weather should it continue longer will result in the starvation and death of many lambs and, unless the feed situation can be alleviated, of many cattle and sheep as well. It will be the first of April before the range will afford any feed, although some are planning on turning out before. Let us all hope for warm weather and green grass which, after all, should grow this year in great abundance—Malheur Enterprise.

THE WHAT-YOU-MAY COLUMN

By "GM"
Chins

The chin is a one-story addition built on the lower end of man's physiognomy to keep his face from ending too abruptly.

But some perverse faces end that way anyhow. In fact, chins, like wealth, are unevenly distributed. Some of us have too many and some none at all. The Lord intended us to have one apiece, but whoever is in charge of the chin distribution department has muffed his job.

This is unfortunate, as the chin is an almost indispensable adjunct to every face. It is necessary for whiskers and things. The man who wears an assortment of them ought to be ashamed of himself.
