"I Didn't Think" is a Poor Excuse, Says Arnold Bennett

In the April Woman's Home Companion Arnold Bennett has an article entitled "The Dull Man is a Bad Man." In it he says:

"You may say that the dull man sins by want of thought rather than with intention, unconsciously rather than consciously. Perhaps. But that does not lessen the evil he causes. If I get out of an auto, and carelessly bang the door of it behind me and catch your finger in the door (you having remained in the car), and leave it caught there, your agony won't be less acute because I, through not looking behind me either before or after I banged the door, am unaware of it. Nor will your resentment against me be any the less, either."

"Simply, to say 'I never realized' is not an entirely satisfactory excuse. People ought to realize. The habit of not realizing grows faster than almost any other habit, and it is very comfortable, and it saves a lot of trouble—to one's self. But it is to be condemned."

"Yet if a man is absolutely dull, if he is utterly without imagination, how can he realize, how can he put himself in the other man's place? Is he not to be pitied instead of anathematized?

"As to that, I will tell you something: There is no such person as the absolutely dull man, the man absolutely without imagination. Everybody has some gift of imagination; everybody can succeed in putting himself, to a certain extent, in the other man's place. And few people, if any, perform this feat as often or as completely as they might do."

POSTMASTERS ALL NOW UNDER CIVIL SERVICE

Washington, April 2.—(United Press)—This is the last day the post-mastership of any city, town or village in the United States will be in politics. Beginning today all post-masters will be appointed under civil service rules, regardless of political beliefs. The examinations will be competitive. Senator Poindexter of Washington declared that President Wilson's action in taking the post-masterships out of politics will not only improve the service but will save the country millions of dollars a year. It also takes the postoffice patronage from Senators and Congressmen. They are said to be glad to get rid of it, on the theory that it was more trouble than it was worth.

How to Make Your Sewing Machine a Children's Kaleidoscope

"I learned to use the sewing machine in an enchanting game," says a writer in the April Woman's Home Companion. "First, for the action merely, my mother left the machine unthreaded, therefore without complications. She showed me how to fold a square of thin paper diagonally once, then again, then a third time. Then, placing the point of the triangle, which was the center of the square, under the needle, she started the wheel, and let me guide the needle haphazard about the triangle, covering it with weird tracery. Behold! When the paper was unfolded, a beautiful symmetrical design, made by me! Many an iron holder I proudly worked in chain stitch from my own designs so made."

One Drop at a Time Saves Many a Dime

In the April Woman's Home Companion a writer says: "In pouring peroxide from the bottle on a small cut or scratch I noticed that a great deal of it was usually spilled—not always on the injured member. Since using a medicine dropper I have had no trouble in applying it in the right place, even with the left hand. This is a very new 'find' of mine, so it hasn't done it yet, but it is going to save me half a bottle of peroxide."

It had Puzzled Him
(Philadelphia Star)
An old farmer and his wife drove to market one day. It had been a very wet day, and large pools of water had formed in the roadway between the farm and the town. On the return journey an old friend was met. "And how are you today?" was the friendly greeting. "Oh, very well, thank you!" answered the farmer. "How is the missus?" continued the friend. "She's fine, fine!" answered the farmer. "She's behind there"—jerking his thumb toward the back seat. "She's not there!" said the astonished friend. The old farmer turned and looked over his shoulder, then coolly replied: "Humph! that would be the splash then!"

Be Sure of Your Broker, Then Trust Him.

In the April Woman's Home Companion Harold Howland has an article entitled "The Woman Who Wants to Invest" in which he says: "A good broker is as valuable to the intending investor as a good doctor to the broker knows the business; he is steeped in the facts of the world of finance; his judgment is trained by study and experience and observation. His advice is worth having. "But be sure he is a good broker. There are charlatans and confidence men even among stock brokers, though the proportion is not nearly so high as the yellow journalists and novelists of 'high finance' would have us believe. Be as careful in picking out your broker as in selecting your lawyer or your doctor. Your chance of getting a good one, if you are equally careful, is quite as good."
