Prospects of Dry New York Causes Worry In Broadway

New York, April, 10.—(Special)—Broadway has long been considered the main line of trenches of the Grand Old Army of General Alcohol. His sturdy troopers have leaned over the mahogany breast-works and philosophically watched the cold water artillery drive in the Western and Southern picket lines. Little worried were they by the evacuation of the Middle-Western out-lying trenches and the threat of flanking movement in the Northeast.

"Let 'em come down to the Bronx!" they cried. "They can sweep Jersey and close up Brooklyn. We can hold this tight little island for our own and accommodate all the suffering refugees to boot. It'll help business."

Then came the war in Europe—the alarming rear attack that has swept the belligerent countries into the Prohibition Dominion. Now with American war imminent, the foe is at the undefended rear gate with old Field Marshall National Prohibition in command.

"I'm afraid it's comin'!" said a disconsolate drummer in a Broadway cafe. "They'll be callin' this little old pike Sahara Lane before long."

"Trouble is," contributed a traveler back from Europe, "the Prohis in this country are too blamed radical. They're putting the lid on everything with a suspicion of alcohol in it. In Europe prohibition laws exempt malt liquors with low alcohol percentage. They're considered temperance drinks. Norway, where they've reduced drunkenness to a minimum, has the most sensible arrangement I think. Liquor with five per cent of alcohol or less is sold unrestricted, just as we sell soft drinks. Then for the fellow who thinks he absolutely must have real hard stuff, they establish in a community where enough signers request it, a dispensary backed by the government and run without profit. It is open only two hours a day and nobody can get more than one drink a day."

Railroad presidents are clamoring for supervision of railway securities, compulsory federal incorporation of interstate carriers, regulation of rates, a regional and functional division of the work of the Interstate Commerce commission, restriction of rate supervision to not more than sixty days, and giving the Interstate Commerce commission power to prescribe minimum as well as maximum rates.

To the public the idea of railroad presidents clamoring for regulation is a novel one. Whatever may be the merits of the case it is undeniable that the American public is suffering from present railway conditions. Railroad securities are not eagerly sought at present by careful investors. Expensive and conflicting regulations have been filed on the roads by the 48 states besides that National government. As a result the net earnings of the country's railroads this last year were the lowest in history and new construction is almost at a standstill.

Of course the public is the ultimate sufferer. We are faced with food shortage due to congested traffic caused by inadequate transportation facilities. We are on the verge of war with a railway system improperly organized to transport troops and supplies. Sentiment around New York seems to favor the railroad men's proposals as a fundamental solution of the problem.

The constantly growing rush of would-be soldiers and sailors to the New York recruiting stations, proves that the old American spirit is not dead on the Eastern sea board. This recruiting brings out many incidents of acute human interest.

One day last week Andrew Miller, a young farm hand from Hannover, Morris county, N. J., came in to one of the stations, muddy, tired and perspiring. "I want to fight," he said simply. "I was working in the field when a feller came along and said the Germans had declared war on the United States, and were bombarding New York City. I dropped my hoe and didn't even wait to get the money that was coming to me. Give me a gun and let me get at those Prussians. I don't need a uniform; all I want is a gun."

Miller was told that war had not been declared, and New York was unharmed. "Well, here I am, anyway," he said. "I'm a little tired because I walked the whole twenty-five miles, but go ahead with your physical examination. I'm ready."

Miller, who is twenty-two years old, explained he had walked because he had no money, and was too proud to beg a ride.

"I guess I can pass your test anyway," he smiled. He did, and he is now on his way to Charleston, S. C.

That it will prevent automobiles overturning is the belief of the inventor of an arm to be so hinged to a car as to swing outward and press a small wheel against the ground when the car careens.

The practice of planting seeds and performing similar farm operations according to superstitious "signs," or according to the moon, are not based on facts.

Beaver, Oregon.—"I was suffering longer than 12 months with asthma, bronchitis and sore throat. I had a very bad cough, difficulty in breathing, tightness about the chest; could not sleep; had no appetite; was always tired. I was running down, from 158 pounds to 117. Every one told me I must die. I started to use the 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and with the best of results, I used three bottles, which cured me. I have no asthma, no cough, no sore throat, no difficulty in breathing any more. Bronchitis is gone. I thank Dr. Pierce for his kind advice."—MRS. THERESIA TOTZAUER.
