WHAT THE PEOPLE CAN DO TO HELP THE NATION—I. BY WOODROW WILSON (President of the United States)

My fellow countrymen: The entrance of our own beloved country into the grim and terrible war for democracy and human rights, which has shaken the world, created so many problems of national life and action which call for immediate consideration and settlement that I hope it will permit me to address to you a few words of earnest counsel and appeal with regard to them.

We are rapidly putting our navy upon an effective war footing and are about to create and equip a great army, but these are the simplest parts of the great task to which we have addressed ourselves. There is not a single selfish element, so far as I can see, in the cause we are fighting for. We are fighting for what we believe and wish to be the rights of mankind, and for the future peace and security of the world. To do this great thing worthily and successfully, we must devote ourselves to the service without regard to profit or material advantage and with an energy and intelligence that will rise to the level of the enterprise itself. We must realize to the fullest how great the task is and how many things, how many kinds and elements of capacity and service and self-sacrifice involves.

These, then, are the things we must do, and do well, besides fighting, the things without which mere fighting would be fruitless:

We must supply abundant food for our armies and our seamen not only, but for a large part of the nations with whom we have now made common cause, in whose support and by whose sides we shall benefit.

We must supply ships by the hundreds out of our shipyards to carry to the other side of the sea, submarines or no submarines, what will every day be needed there; and abundant materials out of our fields and our mines and our factories with which not only to clothe and equip our own forces on land sea, but also to clothe and support our people for whom the gallant fellows under arms can no longer work.

To help clothe and equip the armies with which we are co-operating in Europe and to keep the looms and manufacturing there in raw material; coal to keep the fires going in ships at sea, and in the furnaces of hundreds of factories across the sea, steel out of which to make arms and ammunition both here and there, rails for wornout railways back of the fighting fronts, locomotives and rolling stock to take the place of those every day going to pieces, mules, horses, cattle, for labor and for military service, everything with which the people of England and France and Italy and Russia have usually supplied themselves, but cannot now afford the men, the materials, or the machinery to make.
