Good Roads For Oregon

By E. J. ADAMS, State Highway Commissioner

"Pay As We Go." (b) They tell us that we should "pay as we go," or not go.

This is just what we have been doing for sixty years and we have not gone much. Do we want to continue this policy, or shall we do something that will bring Oregon up on a par with her sister states to the north and the south?

We all know that it is impossible to undertake any great project and discharge the burden all in the year it is undertaken. The only way large things are done is by spreading the burden over a period of years that those who enjoy its benefits may bear its burdens and on the whole make the average burden very light. Certainly no one would advocate the destruction of the hundreds of miles of pavements laid in our cities and yet very few miles of this pavement would ever have been laid if it had to be paid for when laid. However, through the medium of bonds, thus distributing the cost over a limited period of years, we have been able to secure these pavements, have the use of them and not feel the burden of cost.

I venture to say that if you were to go to the people that have paid for these paved streets and tender them back the money it has cost them, plus interest from the date it was paved to the present, upon condition that you might tear it up and remove it and they not be permitted to re-lay the hard surface, you would not be able to destroy very much of the pavement in these cities, notwithstanding it has cost them in many instances a much larger sum than it can now be laid for.

"Paving a Luxury." (c) Our friends also tell us that they do not believe in "bonding the state for luxuries, but only for necessities."

This statement is so empty it does not seem to need a reply, for since when did good roads become a luxury?

The one thing of first importance always has been, and always will be, roads to the settlers of any state and those roads must be good enough to meet the conditions and bear the traffic of the day in which they are built.

"Bonds Mean Bondage."

(d) They also tell us that "bonds mean bondage, bonds mean slavery for coming generation, bonds are the modern method of holding the producing masses to contribute its labor for the favored few."

When, O Lord, when, will the demagogues cease to play to the prejudices of the masses and array them against the classes?

The statement that bonds mean bondage is untrue. Bonds, used in the sense of this bill, are merely a written promise to pay, or promissory note of the state. If this same sort of promise were made by an individual, it would be termed his promissory note. The legal effect is no different whether this note be signed by the state and called a bond, or signed by an individual and called a note. It is merely a written promise to pay for value received. Therefore, it has none of the elements of bondage. But our friends are appealing to the prejudices and passions of the voter and ringing the changes upon the words "bondage" and "slavery."

For shame, that men should resort to such methods in discussing a purely business proposition!

MARIE DORO ~ LASKY-PARAMOUNT

MARIE DORO AT THE ARCADE THEATRE TODAY AND TOMORROW

ARCADE

MARIE DORO IN ROLLICKING IRISH DRAMA.

Marie Doro, the celebrated stage and screen star, who recently scored such a pronounced success in "Oliver Twist" will be seen at the Arcade today and tomorrow in the Jesse L. Lasky production of the clever Irish drama, "Castles for Two," written especially for her by Beatrice De Mille and Leighton Osmun, and produced for the Paramount Program under the direction of Frank Reicher.

By her beauty, personal charm and wonderful dramatic ability, Miss Doro has within a year achieved as great popularity in the photodrama as she did on the speaking stage. In "Castles for Two," she has a wonderful opportunity to show her ability as a comedienne, and is also given plenty of scope for her dramatic talents.

The story of "Castles for Two" has to do with the adventures of an impulsive heiress, who, tiring of social life in New York, flees with her nurse to Ireland, and disguised as a maid, wins the heart of an impecunious but fine Irish lord.

The efforts of this young society girl, trained to be waited upon, to act as a servant in order to make the lord and his wealth-seeking family believe she is of poor origin, are depicted by Miss Doro in her usual charming manner.

As the wealthy society girl, Miss Doro has an opportunity to display a number of beautiful gowns, several of which were designed especially for this production.

Miss Doro's supporting cast is headed by Elliott Dexter, as the young Irish lord and includes Mayme Kelso, Lillian Leighton, Horace B. Carpenter, Billy Elmer, Jane Wolff, Harriett Sorenson, Julia Jackson and Marie Mills.

Good Roads Needed.

The fact that the United States is in war should not detract from the question of good roads. It should intensify it because the need of quick transportation to market at all times is more important now than ever before. The quick moving of food stuffs is a vital matter to the nation as well as to the producer and the possibility of the need of moving troops makes the best possible highways imperative. —Baker Herald.

On Trial for Murder.

Columbus, O., May 12.—(United Press)—Weldon H. Wells, 23 went on trial for his life here today. He is charged with the murder last winter of Mona Simons, 26, whose body was found with a bullet hole through the head in a room at a fashionable hotel here.

Wells, whose home is in Huntington, Ind., was arrested there several days after the killing. He was brought back to Columbus.

Up until a short time before the crime was committed, Wells was employed as a broker's clerk in Kansas City, where his mother now lives.

Southern Handicap Shoot Begins.

Roanoke, Va., May 12.—(United Press)—The Interstate association's twelfth annual southern handicap trapshooting tournament opened here today at the traps of the Roanoke Gun club. One thousand dollars added money will be hung up for prizes. The shoot will continue three days. F. C. Koch, Phillipsburg, Ohio, won the last tournament, which was held at Memphis, with ninety-five targets broken out of 100.
