South Americans Like Our Pears and Apples.

Brazil and Argentina together now take 80,000 barrels of American apples and 65,000 boxes of American pears each year, and the trade is growing steadily, says a report on South American markets for fresh fruits just issued by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, of the Department of Commerce. Trade in other fruits is less important, but since the war started American products have had the market to themselves so far as outside competition is concerned and have made a very good impression.

Unequaled Buying Power Through America's Greatest Buying Organization

Over 500 Progressive Stores With an Annual Purchasing of Fifty Million Dollars

That's why this R. C. U. store is constantly gaining in volume of business—and our list of satisfied customers is growing larger each month—because of our ability to give and the fact that we do give better values for your money in every line.

We Invite Comparison of Our Methods, Our Merchandise and Our Prices

Here you will find the most complete stock of high grade merchandise in Eastern Oregon, bought lower than any firm or organization, excepting R. C. U. stores, can hope to buy—and priced at the closest possible margin of profit.

It is true that costs of merchandise in most every line have advanced and are still advancing—but with our foresight in placing large contracts with mills and manufacturers through the R. C. U. we are offering many lines at prices even lower than present wholesale prices.

We will not sell cheap merchandise in order to hold down prices in any line—as we do not believe in resorting to such methods—but on the contrary you will always find good, honest merchandise—with our guarantee of satisfaction in every department.

If you are a customer of this store, you are already acquainted with these facts—but if you are not our customer you are losing money every day by not acquainting yourself with this R. C. U. store, and our better values, better methods and lower prices.

small intake dam, water patrons may expect muddy water for at least a week or ten days. Now that it is certain that we will have water during the irrigation season, it appears to me that we will be in a position to make some concession to water users, and at the next commission meeting will have a plan to present for your approval whereby the city will be able to relieve the property owners during the irrigation season.

I am submitting to you the report of City Engineer Neal and the city attorney's report relative to the road situation near stockyards.
