SUMMER HINTS FOR THE HOME GARDENER

REPLANTING GARDEN SPACE WHICH HAS ALREADY PRODUCED A CROP

Home Gardeners Should Plan to Follow Early Harvested Crops With Others

Washington, D. C. June 6.—(Special)—Now that radishes, lettuce, and in some section peas, spinach and other early crops are being harvested, home gardeners should be making their preparations to utilize the freed space by planting other crops, say specialists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

In planning for these plantings, the specialists suggest, it is well at all times, but especially this year, to concentrate efforts on the production of vegetables that have considerable food value and on those which may be stored in their natural condition, dried or canned for winter use. Late Irish potatoes is one of the important crops that can be grown on the freed ground. Navy beans furnish substantial food which is easily stored, and the present market prices make it worth while in sections where they thrive, to replant space from which crops have been harvested, with this legume.

Other vegetables having considerable food value from which choice may be made for late plantings include sweet corn, string beans, late beets, turnips, tomatoes, squash and pumpkins. As far north as northern New Jersey, southeastern Pennsylvania, central Ohio, central Indiana, northern Illinois and central Iowa, sweet potatoes also may be depended on to mature from plantings made as late as June 10 on sandy land.

Among the less nutritious vegetables which may be planted in soil freed by early harvests are late cabbage and cucumbers. Winter onions, fall lettuce and fall radishes also may be planted late in the season.

It is not essential, the specialists point out, to wait until all radishes, heads of lettuce and other early maturing plants are removed before before planting seeds or setting plants for succeeding crops. Corn or beans, for example, may be started in spaces made in radish or lettuce rows, or between the rows. The radishes or lettuce will then be harvested before the late planted crops need all the ground. Equally satisfactory results can be obtained from the combination of other early and late vegetables.

DIMMED WHITE WAY ANOTHER WAR HORROR

New York, June 6.—(Special)—'Tis a sad, sad sight the Great White Way, these nights, after 1 a. m. in the morning. For over two years and a half Broadway had flourished and grown even more famous as the only garden-patch of all night gaiety left in all the world untouched by the blight of war. "Business as usual and more so," was the slogan even after America entered the war.

And then there came a frost, a killing frost. It was Mayor Mitchell who turned the crank of the ice-machine with his order revoking all-night licenses till the close of the war.

At first Broadway laughed. Mine host put in a supply of loose-leaf club rosters for use after hours and boosted his budget for entertaining the personnel of the local police precinct.

But alas and two alacks! Yes, and Oh fury! The wily publican found that there had risen up in the land a Pharaoh who knew not Joseph. Police Commissioner Arthur Woods has firmly fixed in his naive, determined head that a law or an executive order means just what it says and is to be enforced accordingly. Which he like-wise did. At least one pair of his twelve thousand pairs, of perforce, honest eyes are fixed constantly on each place of public amusement in the city. It would be about as safe for a proprietor to seek to humor favored patrons after hours, or whisper tentative suggestions regarding the matter, illustrated in green, to the officer on his beat, as for a gentleman of heavy build, talking to himself with a German accent to attempt to carry an open basket of bombs across the Brooklyn bridge at high noon.

The result is a highly feverish and concentrated frolic up to the strike of one, then a sickening thud and a scurrying for cover. A curious by-product is the effect on the all-night dairy lunch places which being considered hitherto places of necessity rather than amusement are allowed to remain open. Here may be seen, now mingled with the sober garb of late workers the evening clothes of many a gay reveller who has been too busy drinking to eat until then, who really doesn't need to eat at that, but hates to admit he has nowhere to go but home. Incidentally the waiters in these sober resorts are beginning to acquire practice in the unwonted art of bouncing.

So much for the notion that one can't have a thoroughly good time unless it cuts seriously into one's sleep.
