Letter Is Censored. Contardo Baccini, a La Grande shoemaker, received a letter from his father who is also a shoemaker in Ligonchi, Italy. The letter is a curious sight. Here and there through it the military censor has gone through it and carefully clipped out with a scissors portions of it evidently referring to the war. Only the personal parts of it remained. So while Baccini knows that his father is well, he does not know how the Italian people regard the war or how it is progressing or when the Italian people believe it will end.

Turn on the Light. Advertising "makes" a good store—and unmakes a poor one. For it turns the light on both, and only merit thrives in the light.

Grand Old Man of La Grande. John Stotts, aged 91 years, was the grand old man of La Grande of Tuesday. In 1846-48 he fought valiantly with the Federal forces in Mexico and marched into Mexico City with the victorious army. Although of recent years he has been in feeble health at the home of his son, James, in this city, he was better Tuesday, and it was with pride that he participated in the inscription parade, the fourth big National conflict in which he has seen America engaged. Local Elks dined the old warrior at noon and gave him an honor conveyance in the parade. After the ceremony, he declared the militia he saw drill to be fine and fit, and pronounced his blessings upon the young men who wore the "I Have Registered—Have You?" ribbons in the parade.
