PUBLIC HEALTH NURSES ARE NEEDED AT HOME. New York, June 21.—(Special)—Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Sr., head of the American Ambulance Hospital in Paris who is back in New York for a short stay strongly urges public health nurses in this country in view of pressing needs at home to apply to their profession the principle of selective conscription during the period of the war. She advises them not to lose their heads and throw up the work in which they are of vital service to their fellow men for the sake of undertaking work abroad or joining the societies that are seeking to organize women for war service.

"One of the great home needs of America," she said, "during the war will be the need for public health nursing. The organizations which are engaged in this work, instead of being weakened by loss of membership should be strengthened to meet the increased demands which will be made upon them. Trained and experienced nurses who are now taking care of women, children and tubercular patients in their homes and dispensaries can do no greater work for the country and for humanity than by remaining 'on their jobs.' "They must not consider themselves slackers or feel that they are lacking in patriotism if they stick to their daily round of duties. On the contrary it would be absolutely wrong for them to give up their work, and jump at the first chance which offers for war service abroad."

Today's War Recipe. (From Britain's Official Win-the-War Cook Book) Vegetable Pie—Two potatoes, three artichokes, three tomatoes, one dessertspoonful barley flour, two sticks celery, one pint of milk, one dessertspoonful margarine, seasoning to taste. Bring the milk to the boil and thicken it with flour. Cut up all the vegetables into small pieces, mix them, season, and put them into a well-greased pie-dish. Pour the thickened milk over them, dot the fat over the top in small pieces. Bake for half an hour or more, keeping the dish closely covered, except for the last five or six minutes to give the top a chance to get brown. Test the vegetables to see if they are tender before serving as sometimes they take longer than a half hour to cook, depending on their age and the heat of the oven. You can use any vegetables you like for this pie, and in any proportions. (Never cut the crust of a slice of bread.)

Picked Up By The Stroller. A young miss bewailed to me the fact that she hadn't bought a Liberty Bond. "I really intended to buy one all along. I didn't know they were going to close up so soon. And now they second-handed and cost one dollar more."

Ted Leiter was invited out to lunch the other day by a young friend and when seated at the dinner table, in order to make conversation addressed his hostess gravely: "Isn't it terrible how high everything is."

His young friend answered, "Yes, our ceiling is very high too." All of which shows that the high cost of living is a universal topic.
