Earning, Spending and Saving

Making money is a business; spending it a necessity; saving it an art.

Many people make money; practically every one spends money; but only the thrifty save it.

Thrift means laying aside the extra dollar that represents youth and vigor to offset the minus dollar that later on will represent old age and decreased vitality.

Goodness! We never expected there would be so much fun and interest in the Observer Wild Animal Contest. Lists are pouring in and the Wild Animal Editor has already asked for help to check up the lists.

Every boy and girl in all La Grande wants to see the Al G. Barnes Big Four Ring Wild Animal circus, which is coming to show at this city June 26 in afternoon and evening performances, and many of these boys and girls are going to win free tickets to this most marvelous collection of 1,000 wild performing animals, which do acts that make you thrill, or split your sides laughing.

You want to see the big, new, spectacular "The Conquest of Nyanza." If you look in your geography you will see Lake Nyanza in Germanic Africa. It is around this great lake that the rarest and most monstrous animals are found. Mr. Barnes has conquered the beast of the jungles, and presents this great pageant, showing in circus splendor how animals are brought out of the wilds.

And remember, tomorrow is the last day. Your list must be in by tomorrow, 5 p. m., at the Observer office. Remember, now, get your list to the Wild Animal Editor, the Observer, not later than 5 o'clock tomorrow evening, and watch Monday's paper for announcement of distribution of prizes. In order that every boy and girl 15 years of age or under in La Grande and vicinity may understand the contest and have a chance at it, we are going to reprint the conditions now. In the sentence, "AL G. BARNES WILD ANIMAL CIRCUS PRIZE CONTEST" are 18 different letters of the alphabet, enough to spell many names of different wild animals. Each letter may be used as often as necessary in spelling the name.

Only the names of wild animals may be used, domestic animals, such as horse, cat, dog, being barred. Names must be spelled correctly and used not more than once in the same list. Answers must be addressed to

Peter Kyne To Enlist

Oakland, Cal., June 22.—(Special) Peter B. Kyne, the noted short story writer, is in a dilemma of duties. Patriotic urgings call him to the colors on one hand, but on the other is a literary obligation that holds him back. He is engaged on a novel which his publishers are wiring for daily.

Just as soon as Kyne gets the novel off his typewriter, he is going to enlist. He hopes to be able to enter the next reserve officers' training camp at San Francisco Presidio in August. When Kyne quits the pen for the sword, he will be the guest of honor at a banquet to be given by the Oakland Chamber of Commerce and will be made an honorary member of that organization. Plans are now under way to make it a gala military event in this city.

Oakland claims Kyne as its own because of his residence in the one of the suburbs on this side of the bay, and also because much of the material for his sea stories is drawn from Oakland's waterfront. In this respect he follows somewhat in the steps of the late Jack London, who discovered some of his most noted characters along Oakland's docks in the days of the whalers.

Kyne will be no "rookie" when he dons khaki, for he soldiered in the Philippines in the "fighting Fourteenth" while he was still in his beardless "teens." "I admit I lied about my age to get into the regular army," Kyne says; "but wild horses couldn't have kept me away from that chase after Aguinaldo. I feel a good deal the same way about the Kaiser."
