Earning, Spending and Saving

Making money is a business; spending it a necessity; saving it an art.

Many people make money; practically every one spends money; but only the thrifty save it.

Thrift means laying aside the extra dollar that represents youth and vigor to offset the minus dollar that later on will represent old age and decreased vitality.

"Best in the Long Run" water of life. Whosoever drinks of the water He gives them will be in them a well of water springing up into everlasting life. Now the water and blood referred to cannot be material substances, and the drinking cannot be a physical act. Hence, they must refer to man's spiritual nature. We use the word "drinking" in a similar sense when we speak of "drinking" in the words, ideas and sentiments" of others, the "deadly thing" is falsity. The truth, which the Lord intended to teach by these words is that those who have a living faith in Him can imbibe false doctrines and suffer no harm from them. False principles and doctrines affect the mind as poisons do the body; but they only do this when they are the form of evil affections. A good man may hold to false opinions, and a bad man may assent to true doctrines. No truth helps one until he applies it to life, and no falsity affects him until he loves it and acts according to it. "It is not that which enters into a man which defiles him," saith our Lord, "but that which comes forth out of him." One drinks deadly things when he hears false principles advocated, and when he reads about them. But they do not hurt him if he lets them alone, has no love for them and does not adopt them. Hence, it is impossible to read a newspaper, or magazine, or any literary work or attend a picture show or theatre without imbibing some deadly thing. The false ideas, doctrines, principles and impressions will enter the memory and consciousness, and it is necessary to fan out the good from the bad. But if he has a living faith in God and accepts his commandments, the bad will not hurt him because he does not entertain such—he casts them out of his mind. Truth is an infallible antidote to error. Love to God and man is a sure protection against the poison of false principles.

It must, also, be admitted, if the mind in childhood should be impressed with lessons of truth and their souls imbued with true Christian faith, they may acquire a spiritual tone and constitutional vigor which will resist the powers of evil to such an extent as to be the true refuge that no plague can invade, to their injury. Thus, it will be seen that this sign is not an exceptional and miraculous effect caused by the suspension of the laws of the human mind or body. On the contrary, it is the necessary effect of orderly causes operating according to invariable laws. The effect must follow a genuine belief in God and his commandments. Finally, "they shall lay hands on the sick and they shall recover." The Savior called Himself the Good Physician, and declares He came into the world to heal the sick. When John sent two of his associates to inquire whether He was the Messiah or not, He answered: "Go and show John again those things which ye do hear and see; the blind receive their sight, and the lame do walk; the lepers are cleansed, the deaf hear, the dead are raised up, and the poor have the gospel preached unto them." While much of this was of a physical nature, yet it was simply a correspondence with the spiritual nature, especially the relief from the disease of sin. His mission was principally to save the people from their sins. Sin is a spiritual disease. It is in fact spiritual leprosy, blindness, deafness, paralysis. Man, as a spiritual being is "full of wounds, bruises and petrifying sores." He is sick naturally and spiritually. But the good Lord came to restore him to spiritual soundness and health. Salvation is acknowledged to be spiritual health. The hand is the correspondent and natural representative of power. By "laying hands on the sick" then, is

Letters From The Front

(From Bremerton Navy Yards)
(The following letter was received by Jap H. Stevens and handed us for publication. William Bradway is a La Grande boy and recently finished a four years' course as machinist in the local shops. He is a nephew of Mrs. W. H. Bohnenkamp. His parents are residents of this city. We are proud to be counted among his friends.)

Bremerton Navy Yards, Wash. June 14, 1917.

Dear Friends—I hope this letter reaches you in good health. I am feeling fine myself. I haven't written before; I have been so busy since I arrived here that I haven't had time to take a full breath, but I'll promise to do better in the future.

I enlisted as a machinist in the navy on the first of June with a second-machinist mate's rating. This puts me away up above the seamen. I was intending to enlist as an aviator in the army but that branch of the service was closed when I applied for enlistment, so I took the best I could get which turned out better than I expected. I am drawing fifty dollars a month now and all expenses paid, with prospects of a quick raise to sixty.

I would like to tell you about the ships here, but it is strictly against regulations because of spies, but I can say that fighters of various types are pretty thick.

There are several thousand men here and more coming all the time.

We have lots of time off on liberty every night if we want it. Two nights a week we have movies. They are just about like the twenty-five cent shows in La Grande. Two other nights we have band concerts—
