

PROVE YOUR LOYALTY BY PATRONIZING LOCAL DEALERS

We have adopted as a slogan—

"Business as usual"

The farmer's slogan should be—

"Greater and better crops"

Other industries should adopt similar slogans, and then we should all live up to them so that the best in terests of our community may be conserved. We can render our greatest service to the Government by keeping all industries moving.

Co-operation is necessary. It is time when we should all work together for the common good of our community. Patronize home dealers. Keep the money at home.

We are ready to do our part by supplying high-grade drug store goods at prices that are right.

their executive questioned Tener as to what he might do if the National league should unanimously request that he retain his office. "I won't say a word," he declared. And there the argument or cross-examination ended. Tener has a lot of business interests. Before he became governor of Pennsylvania, or before he became connected with politics at all to any considerable extent, he was president of one of the nation's most prosperous small-town banks. That business calls him. In addition he has holdings of coal land in Pennsylvania that are very valuable. He is able to devote only a small share of his time to these interests, and private enterprises are being sacrificed by him, to a certain extent, for the good of baseball.

Under these conditions Tener can hardly be blamed for chucking his present job overboard. He has had four years of trouble, has conducted a clean administration, and will leave the league—if it does finally come to that—with a fine reputation.

Tener is a man who came from the ranks of baseball, passed through the early grind of vicissitudes which assail any young man's life, because a member of the national house of representatives, was elected governor of one of the nation's most powerful states, and passed into the third stage of his public career as president of the oldest institution in baseball—the National league.

TENER FIRM IN RESOLVE TO QUIT NATIONAL LEAGUE

BY H. C. HAMILTON.

(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

New York, June 29.—Gov. John K. Tener is through as president of the National league. There can be no question of his sincerity in the announcement made during the recent

And that's all he would say. Several persons, remembering that Tener was governor of Pennsylvania when the National league club-owners sought him out and made him
