ARCADE

BLANCHE SWEET AND THOMAS MEIGHAN AT ARCADE

Blanche Sweet will be seen at the Arcade today and tomorrow in the Jesse L. Lasky production "The Silent Partner," a thrilling drama of business and social life by Edmund Goulding, prepared for the screen by George Du Bois Proctor. It is a Paramount picture.

In "The Tides of Barnegat," Miss Sweet was seen as a school teacher in a small Jersey town. In her latest success she is discovered as the secretary of a busy New York stock-broker. How she discovers her employer is being robbed by his partner, how she aids in dissolving the partnership and how, eventually, although discharged, saves her employer's fortune and good name, is presented in a most unusual and startling manner.

Scene follows scene in quick succession, and as the head of the firm is about to be plunged into a most terrible tragedy, his private secretary, one of the most beautiful and alert in this photodrama is the only boy. His reputation as a practical joker having become so well known among business men in Los Angeles that he could not secure a position, he makes his living playing office boy for motion picture companies. It is said he has been discharged more times than any other living office boy. No sooner is he comfortably initiated into a new position than he springs some practical joke on the head of the firm, and is promptly "bounced." His innocent expression won him job after job, but even that fails now, as his chernic face and auburn hair are well known in Los Angeles business circles.

"The Silent Partner" was produced for the Lasky Company under the able direction of Marshall Neilan, and the excellent cast supporting Miss Sweet is composed of such prominent artists as Thomas Meighan, Ernest Joy, Mabel Van Buren, George Hebert and Florence Smythe.

Doing Good.

Few medicines have met with more favor or accomplished more good than Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy. John F. Jantzen, Delmon, Sask., says of it, "I have used Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy myself and in my family, and can recommend it as being an exceptional, best preparation."—Adv.

Managers, July 16.—(Special)—Believing that the use of a cork leg should not prevent him from serving his country, John Franklin walked over 50 miles from a farm near Wilburton, to this city to apply for enlistment in the United States Marine Corps.

Frankling had spent two months ploughing the fields previous to his long walk, and supported himself on the hike by working at odd jobs along the way. He surprised the Marine Corps medical examiner by walking without the slightest sign of lameness.

Although Franklin expressed the opinion that his cork leg should be considered a handy life-preserver in case of submarine attack, he was not accepted.

Cause of Despondency.

Despondency is often caused by indigestion and constipation, and quickly disappears when Chamberlain's Tablets are taken. These tablets strengthen the digestion and move the bowels.—Adv.

WORTHAM CARNIVAL ALL NEXT WEEK.

With the coming of the Wortham Shows La Grande will have a complete carnival company within its gates. It is said to have twenty or more attractions, chief among which is the Wortham Wild Beast Exhibition. Then there are the Monkey Auto races, where live monkeys drive miniature racing cars about a large circular track. The Arabian Nights, The Miracle, Top O World, and Neptune's Daughter are a few of the exhibitions to be seen on the midway which will be located on the circus grounds.

The shows travel on a special train and will arrive in the city next Sunday.

FOUGHT THE DRAFT

The Scene in New York City During the Riots of 1863.

A BRIEF REIGN OF TERROR.

For Five Days the Mobs Opposed to Conscription Raged Through the Streets, and More Than a Thousand Persons Were Killed or Wounded.

During the draft riots in the war days of 1863 New York city was in the grip of a reign of terror and bloodshed for nearly a week. Conscription was begun on the morning of Tuesday, July 13, in a four story brick building at Third avenue and Forty-sixth street, under the supervision of Provost Marshal Jenkins. Assistance and protection had been promised, but no one came to help him and his little force. Drafting commenced at 9 o'clock, and a big crowd stood outside. A stone was hurled through a window at 10:30 o'clock, and soon many more were battering against the walls. Terrorized, the police and draft officers fled to the street, where many of them were roughly handled.

The rioters rushed into the draft office and threw the enrollment books out of the windows to the crowd, which tore the records to shreds. The draft wheel, chairs and tables were smashed, piled in the middle of the room, and a match was applied. This building was one of the many burned, the aggregate loss by incendiary fires being estimated at $2,000,000.

For negroes, in the city it was a day of doom, the mob looking upon them as one of the chief causes of the draft. Many of them were killed and wounded, some being shot, others beaten to death and still others hanged to trees and lampposts. The Colored Orphan asylum was burned. Near Fulton market boys killed three negroes and left their bodies on the pier near Fulton ferry entrance.

So suddenly did the shock come that the police and limited force of militia in town could not resist it. There was a hurried conference between Major General Wool, ex-Governor Morgan, General Anthon and Brigadier General Harvey Brown; but, owing to the absence of Governor Horatio Seymour, whose opinion was wanted, martial law was not declared. Brigadier General Brown, however, took command of the troops in the city and summoned from nearby points all available soldiers. Mayor George Opylke issued an anti-riot proclamation.

During the afternoon a mob swept along Fifth avenue, destroying property. They were ready to burn Mayor Opylke's home, but Judge Barnard saved it by telling the crowd the only way to resist the draft was by bringing it before the court. He promised he would issue a writ of habeas corpus for any drafted man for whom application should be made. In all the mobs were many infuriated women, whose actions were often worse than those of the men.

Horace Greeley, who was a particular object of aversion to the rioters, started, as usual, from his home in Nineteenth street to go on a Fourth avenue car to the Tribune office. Friends told him of his danger, and he spent the day in Windust's restaurant, at Park row and Ann street, and went home at night in a closed carriage while mobs were demanding his blood.

Governor Seymour issued a proclamation the next day calling on all citizens to stand by the constituted authorities and assist in maintaining order. Rioting, however, continued throughout the day and night, the police, soldiers and mobs having many fatal encounters.

On the third day the rioting continued, and many of the mob and the city's defenders were killed or wounded. The federal authorities postponed the draft, but trouble did not cease at once, as many of the rioters thought the action was a governmental trick to gain time. The fourth day brought further disorders in New York and Brooklyn. Archbishop Hughes addressed a crowd in front of his home, urging them to keep the peace. His plea had a soothing effect.

On the fifth day fighting ceased and order was partly restored. A heavy storm also dampened the ardor of the fired rioters. General James B. Fry, provost marshal general of the United States, issued an order that drafting would be resumed. Brigadier General E. R. S. Canby assumed command of the Federal troops in the city, relieving General Brown. A roundup of ringleaders among the rioters followed, and many were arrested. By July 30 order was completely restored.

More than 1,000 persons were killed or wounded during the rioting, among them Colonel O'Brien of the Eleventh New York volunteers, then in the city on recruiting duty. He ventured out in uniform after having conspicuously opposed the mob. He was seized, beaten, dragged through the streets and finally hung into his own back yard, where he died.—New York Sun.

Repotting Plants.

Repotting plants becomes necessary at intervals from two considerations. The plant uses up the available fertility in the soil and fills the pot with roots. In repotting plants it is well to shake off whatever earth can be separated without breaking and injuring the roots. Then water and shade for a few days.

Fame is something which must be won; honor only something which must not be lost.—Schopenhauer.
