Studebaker

SUPERIORITIES

—a more economical Car to run

Studebaker engineers have spent four years in developing the present Studebaker car from a single basic design.

It is only reasonable to expect that the studious, ceaseless effort of these experts should produce results.

And it has—

For as the Studebaker stands today, it is the lightest car in ratio to its power on the market—this means economy of gasoline.

Its perfect balance, its long, resilient springs, its oversize tires, mean comfort and remarkable tire economy—8,000 miles per set and more.

The electric system is so simple that it rarely, if ever, needs attention.

And most important of all, the highly refined Studebaker motor reduces garage bills almost to the vanishing point. Let us show you the details of what we, as experts, consider the most economical high-quality car to run.
