THE SPEED 'EM UP.

La Grande's annual automobile and motorcycle races are here. Every year these events show improvement. The management this year has taken steps to insure in greater degree the comfort of the visitors. The track has been oiled to keep down dust; a screen has been built over the grandstand to protect our guests from the glare of the sun; announcers are provided to keep the spectators informed of the progress of the races. This is the way La Grande does things; the comfort and pleasure of the visitors is our main care and consideration. We like to have people come to see us; we court their good will and good opinion. We hope that the Speed 'Em up will help to make firm and fast friends of many people for our city. Undoubtedly it will. To the visitors we extend a cordial welcome.

THE DRAFT.

The names of many were drawn in the draft. They respond in the order called. Many more names were drawn than will be called from Union County, whose quota is eleven, and from Wallowa County, whose quota is thirteen. The system is a great deal like calling a jury. The first eleven will appear and be examined. If they are found to be exempt the others will be called in the order drawn. The duty of those drafted is to await instructions from their local boards which will come in due course of time. The draft is and has been a matter of intense public interest. The United States is to be congratulated upon the fairness in which it has been conducted and the admirable temper of those drafted and the people.

DR. GRAHAM'S APPOINTMENT.

The appointment of Dr. J. P. Graham as major in command of the Oregon Field Hospital Unit No. 1, made up largely of La Grande boys and the rest from Eastern Oregon, is a matter of congratulation. It illustrates one thing. The value of all working together for the interest of La Grande. It certainly was to La Grande's interest to have a La Grande physician in command of their boys. It would not have looked well to have organized a hospital unit in La Grande and then to have gone to another city to have secured a commanding officer. Having a competent man, all put their shoulders to the wheel and worked. The recognition given to La Grande by the adjutant general was right and proper and is much appreciated.

Diversified Farming

(By Kenneth Gilbert. These articles are reprinted from the "Business Chronicle" of Seattle, Wash., by permission of the publisher. They appeared in serior form in that publication, Feb. 24 to April 21, 1917. A copy may be had by addressing the Union Pacific System.)

The Farmer Who Diversifes Properly Must Raise Hogs.

Along the line of thought suggested by corn growing, as touched upon in the preceding article, comes the cheapening of pork production, certainly an important factor in successful diversified farming. For the farmer who diversifies properly must raise hogs.

In raising hogs, there is too wide a variation in the measure of profit. Some hog-raisers make surprising profits; others do not. The fact that good profit is possible warrants the assertion that hog-raisers who are not succeeding may, with some slight changes in their methods, turn defeat into victory.

Feeding grain to young pigs while on pasture produces the largest measure of profit, as it has been amply proved that pasture alone makes growth too slow. If the pig is fed a moderate grain ration every day while he is on pasture, he will average twice the daily gain that he would were he on pasture alone. He can be marketed at 200 pounds weight at about one-half the cost of finishing the shoat that was raised on pasture alone.
