SOME THINGS FOR AMERICA TO CONSIDER

By SPENCER WILKINSON. (Professor of Military History, Oxford University.)

(Written for the United Press) ARTICLE TWO.

London, July 6.—(By Mail)—The officer should be the teacher and the leader of his men. Therefore the rule should be rigidly enforced that for an officer the indispensable qualification is a strong character and a liberal education. He must be a person whom the men will respect, for the private soldier gauges instinctively the spiritual quality of those who are set over him. The military education of the officer must aim at making him a tactician. All the rest is of slight importance. The routine of the army, its methods of administration, the necessary rudiments of military law are picked up by the officer insensibly in the course of his military life. But unless he starts with clear and sound ideas of the essential points of tactics, of the art of fighting, of making the best of his men's weapons and the ground, he will be hampered throughout his career.

The U. S. government in forming a series of great schools for the tactical instruction of young men seeking to become officers is thereby laying the best foundation for its future army. Neglect of this matter at the beginning cannot possibly be remedied by any subsequent measures.

"Napoleon said, 'The ideal army would be that in which every officer, according to his rank, should know exactly what he ought to do in any situation in which he might find himself.'"

In the training of the men it is impossible to exaggerate the importance of good shooting. Prince Hohenlohe, a great Prussian artillery commander of the last generation, was asked what are the three great functions of artillery and replied: "The first is to hit, the second is to hit, and the third is to hit."

In spite of the immense development of the power of the gun which has marked the 20th century, in spite of the return to hand grenades, bombs and trench mortars, the most deadly weapon is always the bullet—the weapon of the infantry soldier. For one man who falls to the bayonet, for ten men who fall to the shell, hundreds fall to the bullet. But the bullet does not hit because the man pulls the trigger. It hits because he knows how to take aim. This is the hard, material fact, but there is more potent spiritual fact. During the ten years in which I was the trainer of a company of infantry I discovered, as others had done before me, the relation between the bullet and the soldier's soul.

It is not an easy thing for a man lying down with a rifle in his hand to hit the figure of a man's head 600 yards away. It requires a great deal of learning and a great deal of practice. If the young recruit is not carefully taught he receives the impression that it is impossible for him to hit the mark and that when he does it is pure accident. Take a man in that frame of mind into the front of battle, where the enemy bullets are whistling in his ears and where men are falling about him, and he will be terribly anxious to be somewhere else. But if a man's practice has proved to him that he can hit the mark with two bullets out of three, he will be in a very different state of mind. He will be sorry for the enemy, not for himself. He will feel sure before his magazine is emptied that particular enemy will be off the board. The infantry soldiers of the small British army which Lord French took to France at the beginning of the war were able to check the assaults of many times their number of Prussians. The men could shoot straight and they knew it. When the Prussians came on they mowed them down. If they had not been good shots their courage would have availed them nothing.

On the first day of the battle of Gettysburg General Doubleday was very anxious to hold a forward position athwart the Chambersburg pike. He ordered up Stone's brigade of Pennsylvania troops and Stone formed his men behind a ridge sheltered by a stone fence. It was a hot place. The whole ground was alive with bursting shells. The men said "General, we've come to stay." Those men died where they stood.

AMERICA'S BOARD OF WAR DIRECTORS

Bernard M. Baruch. A sportsman, and an ardent man, when Bernard M. Baruch, a prominent Wall street operator, was chosen by President Wilson as head of the Committee on Raw Materials of the Council of National Defense, he brought that ardor to his service to the nation.

Baruch is tall and has a distinguished confidence of bearing, with the vivid eye of genius and the smile of a charmer. Such a good conversationalist is he, and so thoroughly does he understand his subject that he has been able to procure for the government 45,000,000 pounds of copper at a savings of $10,000,000.

No longer does the government take the figure of the lowest bidder when it makes a large purchase. It puts Bernard M. Baruch on the job, he figures what the material ought to cost, then goes out and gets it at that price. And all without a cent of pay. He's even paying his own expenses, for that matter Baruch pays his own office rent—he has a suite of six or seven rooms—pays the salaries of a dozen of his highest paid clerks, and to cap it all, pays all the living expenses of those clerks while they're in Washington.

Mt. Emily News

Mt. Emily, July 20.—(Special)—J. E. Fulkerson and family are camped on top of Mt. Emily. Mr. Fulkerson has been appointed fire warden for this district and has been very busy repairing the telephone line and the road to his camp. If the present hot and dry spell continues he will no doubt have many fires to report before long.

The first timber fire of the season in this section occurred last Wednesday. During the thunder shower that day a bolt of lightning struck a tree on what is known locally as the Ackles hill and set fire to the timber. J. H. Blumenstein came up from town after the storm and discovered the fire. Next morning he and Fire Warden Fulkerson put it out. As the shower had dampened the woods considerably only a small area was burned over. As a rule it is hard to find out how a timber fire gets started but in this case the evidence was very plain and there was no doubt about the fire's origin.

The hot weather has not bothered us much up here. The hottest it got was 81 or 82 in the shade. The hot nights complained of in town were nice and cool up here. Much wood is being hauled and the road is very dusty in places. We need a rain to lay the dust.

Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy.

Now is the time to buy a bottle of this remedy so as to be prepared in case that any one of your family should have an attack of colic or diarrhoea during the summer months. It is worth a hundred times its cost when needed.—Adv.

TRENCH TALES.

"I got it in both legs before we reached the German lines," a youthful Australian was relating his experience at Vimy Ridge, "but, Glory be to God, I fell into a shell-hole and lay down snug as you please in a clever place. I lay there for hours and I heard a great roarin' noise comin' near me. I knew it was a tank and I prayed it would not come near me, me bein' hid in the shell-hole. But I heard it go roarin' past quite near and then it got stuck, and I could hear it fightin' and strugglin' to get clear. I never saw it.

"Later in the day, a lad I knew came by, slightly wounded. 'Hallo, Peter,' says he, when he saw me in the hole. 'For God's sake have you a water bottle with you?' says I. 'Me legs is both broke and I can't move to get a grip of mine.' He threw me down his water-bottle and it bein full of rum and water, 'it kept me goin'. Then it began to rain, and another lad, passin' by, saw me and threw me down a water-proof sheet. Late at night the stretcher-bearers got me. So they were all Good Samaritans, the way they helped, them that saw me lyin' by the wayside."

Cause of Despondency.

Despondency is often caused by indigestion and constipation, and quickly disappears when Chamberlain's Tablets are taken. These tablets strengthen the digestion and move the bowels.—Adv.

Farms For Sale

I have several small and medium sized farms for sale that will bear investigation.

One farm the owner will consider a part or possibly all in exchange for La Grande City property.

I have a splendid rooming and boarding house property that is especially well located for this purpose which the owner will consider taking a small home as first payment and will give very easy terms and a low rate of interest on the balance.
