THE GOETHALS-DENMAN EMBROGLIO.

After all the Goethals-Denman embroglio has done one thing. It has cleared the atmosphere in a most surprising fashion and it demonstrates Mr. Wilson's wonderfully clear ways of thinking and his promptitude of action.

There is something about Mr. Wilson's serenity, about the boldness of some of his public acts that appeal to the American people. This is one of them. We predict also that the President will win out with Congress in his loyalty to Hoover.

Herbert Hoover has secured the services of President Ray Lyman Wilbur, of Stanford University, as his assistant in the work of food administration. They were old college chums.

Such gatherings as the grange meeting at the Union Experimental Station promote sociability and acquaint those in attendance with much useful information.

The boys' hearts are light and free; it is the mothers we are thinking about today.

HOSPITAL UNIT MOBILIZES.

ation of the boys' enlistment in the service of the state and nation.

William Miller, president of the bank, presided as toastmaster. Besides the members of the hospital unit, those present were the directors of the bank, George T. Cochran, William Miller, T. J. Scroggin, U. G. Couch, A. L. Richardson, J. F. Conley, J. L. Caviness, and Judge J. C. Henry, and the invited guests, Vincent Palmer, Dr. H. S. Brownton, Fred B. Currey, Clarke Leiter, Norman Desilet, C. M. Humphreys, C. H. Conkey, Earl Mason, E. M. Hiatt, of Enterprise, J. E. Foley, and Dr. C. A. Edwards.

During the evening, an orchestra played patriotic airs and a very enjoyable part of the program was the appearance of Mrs. T. J. Scroggin, who sang "Your Flag and My Flag" and was heartily applauded and endorsed, and of Mrs. A. L. Richardson, who sang "When You Come Home" and as an encore "Keep the Home Fires Burning," receiving enthusiastic applause.

Clarke Leiter was the first speaker, on the topic "The Press and the War". He congratulated the boys upon their patriotic enlistment, declared that they were going into a just and righteous war, and asked the boys to write frequently to the home people and to their home newspaper, so that the people at home could do everything possible for them while at the front.

Fred B. Currey, city manager, told of the pride that the city of La Grande and its citizens felt in sending to the service of the nation such a fine body of young men.

Dr. C. A. Edwards was really the orator of the evening. In a speech full of wit and humor that kept the boys entertained, he told of the slogan of the war for democracy against autocracy, and made the boys feel that they were following in the footsteps of their forefathers in fighting the battles of liberty.

George T. Cochran made a neat and well chosen speech, enlivened with humor, and also full of seriousness when he told the boys that the great statesmen in charge of the war were planning on the contest lasting five years. Mr. Cochran spoke on behalf of the bank which tendered the dinner.

Dr. J. P. Graham the commanding officer spoke of the character and personnel of his command, and expressed the belief that the boys would reflect honor on their home communities. He also invited all to visit the boys when they were in camp.

T. J. Scroggin told of the three young men, Chas. Harding, Jerome Foley and Robert Pattison, who were leaving the employ of the bank, the finest young men he ever saw, and expressed the belief that all the rest of the boys of the company were just as fine. He wished them good luck and god-speed.

One of the pleasing incidents of the evening was the announcement of Rev. C. A. Edwards that he would in the morning present the boys with a beautiful flag, which he hoped they would carry with them and bring back just as untarnished and unscuffed as it was when they left. Mr Edwards presented the flag this morning.

The boys were in fine spirits; there were, of course, some moments of solemnity, but the boys were lively and jolly and full of fun and pep.

After the banquet was over and Mr. Miller had dismissed the company with the good wishes of all present in a few well chosen remarks, the boys adjourned to the Elks' Club where they were the guests at a dance at which the boys of Company M and the Honor Guard girls were also guests.

During the evening at the Elks' Club the $250 check was presented the company fund. This money was voted to the company by the lodge, when Messrs. T. J. Scroggin and H. J. Ritter had given up their rights to the trip to the Elks' grand lodge at Boston.

This morning the boys assembled at 6 a. m. for roll call, and then went to breakfast, the boys who live here breakfasting at home. At 8:45 they reported for drill and will drill again this afternoon at the high school grounds. They are all in fine spirits and have the determination to make good.

Easy to Start, Hard to Finish.

The first thing an Atchison county farmer wanted to do, after moving to town, was to start a newspaper. Oh, it's so easy to run a newspaper. Anyone can do it. We actually believe the monkeys of Cococantland could get out a good newspaper, and pay off the printers in full every Saturday night.—Atchison Globe.
