Red Cross Wants Them

Every household has cotton or linen articles past further family use.

No matter how soiled, bundle them up, mark the bundle "Red Cross" and call the laundry. They will be gathered on our regular trips. After being cleansed and sterilized the articles will be delivered to the Red Cross committee to be made into life-saving things for our soldier boys.

Melon Industry Filmed.

San Francisco, July 28.—(Special)—The ranks of filmdom's stars have a new recruit—the Imperial Valley cantaloupe. Moving pictures, showing the extent of the new industry, and the extraordinary care taken in seeing that the melons are safely transported to all portions of America, have been taken, and will shortly be shown all over the country.

In this connection Southern Pacific officials say that the Government is assisting in experiments intended to still further encourage the industry. Nine carloads of cantaloupes were recently sent out of Brawley, each car equipped with thermometers by which the temperature of the various parts of the car can be read from the outside and each car differently constructed on the inside. The train was in care of C. E. Schuster of the department of transportation investigation of the United States and C. A. Richardson of the Pacific Fruit Express. Observations were taken all along the line with the object of learning the best methods of shipping the fruit.

G. L. Fischer, science assistant of pomology at Washington, D. C., and A. W. McKay United States Investigator of Transportation, are conducting experiments at Brawley.

RAILROADS OF COUNTRY HAVE BEEN NATIONALIZED

New York, July 28.—(Special)—The statement given out here last spring that the inability of the railroads to handle the country's increased business was largely responsible for the high cost of living is being answered in a most practical way, according to Daniel Willard, chairman of the Committee on Transportation of the Council of National Defense. Since war with Germany was declared, this committee, through cooperation with the war board, has nationalized the 693 railroad companies of the country so that they operate practically as one system, thus eliminating much of the waste of duplication. Through this unification the roads have not only been able to transfer all troops on schedule, without interfering with civil traffic, to the entire satisfaction of the war department, but they are handling at the same time, without congestion, over 3,000,000,000 more ton miles a month than a year ago, or an increase of 16 per cent.

In spite of this increased business they have decreased the general car shortage one-third since May 1st. They have increased the practical supply of cars by 779,000 through heavier loading, quicker repairs, quicker handling, by pooling shipments at lake and seaports thus releasing cars immediately and by utilizing box cars that formerly were sent to the coast empty. They have given preference to coal shipments, particularly for the government and its allies. Twenty-nine per cent more bituminous coal was handled in April this year than in same month of 1916. Second preference has been given to ore shipments which have also increased enormously.

The grain situation has also been greatly improved. There is no grain being held at any point because of a car shortage. The entire deciduous fruit crop will also be handled satisfactorily. To further this, efforts are being made to supply cars where needed by transferring empty cars from one section to another regardless of ownership. All passenger trains not absolutely necessary are being removed from service.

Such reforms as this, it is believed, cannot help but increase the available supply of the necessities of life and contribute much toward modifying the cost of living.

Studebaker SUPERIORITIES

—a never-failing Electrical System

Never failing because it's so simple—there's no complicated mechanism or wiring to get out of order.

It's a two-unit system, which means that the generator does nothing but produce current which is stored in the 100-ampere-hour Willard battery—the starting motor compact, silent powerful, exerts a tremendous, continuous cranking force no matter what the weather. All wiring is oversize (current flows with less resistance through big wires). And all wires are cased in flexible steel conduits.

It's simple—that's why it never fails. And the fact that it's always ready for duty makes it possible for a Studebaker owner to forget what many another owner must constantly keep remembering.
