RESIDENT FOREIGNERS BUY BONDS.

It was not American citizens alone who subscribed to Liberty Loan Bonds. A great number of citizens of other nations living here, who have never taken out naturalization papers, subscribed liberally to the bonds. The International Nickel Company at its Bayonne plant has nearly two thousand foreigners in its employ and those foreigners purchased more than one hundred and fifty thousand dollars of Liberty Loan Bonds.

It has been noted, too, that American cities with large populations of foreign birth were notably liberal in their subscriptions to the Liberty Loan.

Now that our soldiers are actually in France, and our people familiar as never before with the details of Government bond issues, the next issue of Liberty Loan Bonds will receive undoubtedly an even more enthusiastic support than its predecessor.

WOMEN IN THE WAR.

After all when you search for the mainsprings of action in a man's life, you must seek for the woman. The French proverb "Seek the Woman" has gone into history. So it is in the war that the women must be for it heart and soul if a nation is to win. No nation ever won a war which the women opposed, or resisted, or sulked in. It was with great pleasure that we heard Mr. Frederic Coleman pay a tribute to the French and English women last night in his lecture before the Press Club and their guests. It was inspiring to hear of the sacrifices, of the whole hearted devotion of the women to country, of their rigid determination that their country must win, even if they had to give up all. We are too near to the war now to see clearly, but through the mists we can see many things which are ennobling, inspiring and elevating, and the supreme thing to our mind is the consecration of the women to their country's service. This it is which enheartens the men in the trenches, and drives them to noble deeds of heroism and self-sacrifice. It makes them supermen.

We must finance our men who are fighting in France.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

Midsummer Madness.

Cool weather continues, but midsummer madness appears. It's in connection with the automobile business. Here and there a gloomy person thinks it's going to pot. What can a sane man find to support theory like that at this time?

Never was such a demand for automobiles. Never such Patriotic.

Tacoma, Wash., July 28.—John C. Waldron was puzzled—much puzzled. His next door neighbor was running after a rabbit. Waldron had seen friend neighbor running after the same rabbit the night before, and the night before that. He could stand it no longer.

"You can't catch a rabbit running after it?" Waldron shouted.

"I'm not trying to catch it," the neighbor replied between pants. "I'm chasing"—pant—"it out of my garden."

"That's a new kind of patriotism," observed Waldron to himself. "I've considered fighting, buying war bonds and helping the Red Cross visible exhibitions of patriotism, but now I've added chasing rabbits to the list."

Minimum Price $2

The minimum price for wheat under the food control bill is $2. By some error it was stated that the maximum price was $2.

a rapid using up of vast numbers. Hundreds of thousands are being junked on the battle front. An artillery horse's life is short and also that of an army automobile. Europe has been drained of cars for war business. And the drain continues. Every warring nation is being combed for transport material. Pleasure riding has almost vanished. No automobiles to ride in. About six pleasure cars a week are possibly being turned out in Great Britain.

Automobile and other factories over there have been converted into munitions plants. There's where America comes in with an assured automobile business while the war lasts. There's where she also comes in when the war ends. These plants can't be reconverted overnight into automobile factories. It will take time. In the meantime those countries will demand all sorts of automobiles. They will also be used to the idea of getting things from America. Therefore America may confidently keep on making great numbers of machines. Assured domestic and foreign markets await them.

It's sheer midsummer madness—the suggestion that the automobile industry of all industries is or is likely to be in a bad way. No well-run automobile manufacturing concern has any reason to fear conditions. Prosperity is with us and will remain during the war. That is no mere dogmatic statement; it is the view of conservative business men of wide interests and wider outlook. Prosperity means automobiles. The automobile saturation point is not reached here—and it is far from reached abroad.

WHY--

The Business Man and The Banker should encourage and The Farmer should practice Diversified Farming

(By Kenneth Gilbert. These articles are reprinted from the "Business Chronicle" of Seattle, Wash., by permission of the publisher. They appeared in serial form in that publication, Feb. 24 to April 21, 1917. A copy may be had by addressing the Union Pacific System.)

Help to Create a Pay Roll in the Community—It Pays Good Dividends.

A farmer who pays some attention to the economics of his calling will undoubtedly agree that if, by devoting a few acres of his farm to a certain kind of crop, it will result in creating a pay roll, building up the community, and thus tend to simplify his marketing problems, he would gladly plant part of his acreage to such a crop. This being true, there is no reason why all farmers in the vicinity of a beet sugar factory should not do their share by raising a crop of sugar beets each year.

Producing sugar beets in this country has proved a profitable enterprise, where it has been properly conducted. The industry has grown steadily from a production of 200 tons in 1865 to a production of 722,000 tons in 1915. The 1915 figures will undoubtedly show a large increase, and it is certain that the output will be tremendously larger this year. The production has grown 200 per cent during the past decade.

The growing of sugar beets, as an agricultural enterprise has certain important secondary advantages. The crop fits most excellently into a rotation system with alfalfa or clover and grain. The necessity for thorough cultivation and the keeping down of weeds, brings the soil into a most excellent physical condition, weeds gradually being eliminated from the tract. In some of the irrigated districts of Washington, the alfalfa fields have run down until they are badly choked with weeds, especially cheat. Converting these lands into sugar beet fields for a few years will restore the land to an excellent agricultural condition. It could be born in mind in this connection that sugar beets require good soil; it would be folly to attempt to grow them upon poor land.

Sugar beet culture has another advantage, especially in the irrigated districts, and that is, the resistance of agricultural crops to this soil condition. The sugar beet is a close relation, botanically, to the salt bush, the native plant of the alkali flats.
