Studebaker
SUPERIORITIES

—a Safer Rear Axle

Studebaker engineers have been able to perfect the full-floating Rear Axle by exhaustive study of the performance of hundreds of thousands of Studebaker cars under every imaginable condition of service.

It stands to reason that the Studebaker full-floating axle is safest.

Think a minute; with Studebaker the axle shaft turns the wheels—nothing else. The axle-housing bears the weight of the car and takes up side thrusts from turns and skids. To a great extent, in the semi-floating type and altogether in the live axle, these strains are borne by the axle shaft itself.

In any other type there's always danger of a broken shaft and a wheel coming off.

So you see it is simply a matter of mechanical fact, that the Studebaker full-floating rear axle is safest.

Let us explain in detail this point of Studebaker value.
