GERMANS ATTACK GRADUATING CLASS OF FRENCH BOMB THROWERS

By HERNY WOOD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
With The French Armies in Champagne, July 15—(By Mail)—This is the sorry story of a German battalion that made the regrettable error on June 21 of attacking a graduating class of the French Grenade School just at the moment when the graduates were all lined up for their final graduating exercises.

When the French Grenade graduates had succeeded in imposing tranquility on the part of the Germans until their graduating exercises could be completed, 200 Germans dead could be counted on the field of operation whilst the French lines on a 600 meter front had been advanced 300 meters. The graduates had three killed and 17 wounded for their total losses.

The custom of the French to hold graduating exercises in their front line trenches has arisen from the necessity of changing their whole system of infantry tactics as a result of the exigencies of the present war.

Instruction camps were established back from the front lines, and as fast as possible troops were withdrawn from the fighting ranks and given a month or two of schooling. From an old time infantryman who knew nothing but the use of the rifle and bayonet, the men came out of these schools highly developed specialists either as hand or rifle grenade throwers; portable machinegun experts; baby cannon sharpshooters or bayonet sharks.

When a class has completed its full course of instruction at one of these schools, it is taken to the front line trenches and for its final graduating exercises makes an attack on the Germans—usually for the purpose of capturing a trench, observatory or some small fortified position. It was one of three graduating classes that was in the act of undergoing its final graduating exercises that the Germans accidentally attacked. The class consisted of grenade throwers, portable machinegun marksmen together with a few rifle grenadiers, baby cannon sharpshooters and bayonet experts. In all the class numbered less than 100.

They had just taken up their positions in the front line trenches on the northeastern slope of Mount Cornillet where their final graduating exercises were to be performed. The Germans still held one observatory on this side of the ridge and the graduates were to demonstrate their fitness to pass from the school period of new infantry tactics into that of actual war, by storming and capturing the observatory.

The last preparations for the assault were being made when just a half hour before the attack was scheduled, the Germans suddenly launched an attack of their own against the trench being held by the grenade graduates. It is doubtful if a bigger piece of "pie" was ever offered to France's new infantry specialists.

Loaded to the teeth as they were with grenade and munitions for their own attack, they merely laid back in their trench until the German assaulting column was within stone's throw and then opened up with all the perfected weapons of modern infantry tactics. In less than two minutes there was not a German left standing. Although it was still all of fifteen minutes before the grenade graduates were scheduled to launch their own graduating attack, the moment was too propitious, and they went over the French rampart, across the dead bodies of the assaulting troops and captured the last remaining German observatory on Mount Cornillet in precisely the manner they had been taught to do it at the school of new infantry tactics.

Only four prisoners were taken by the graduates—and all four of these wounded—but when the attack was finished there were over 200 German dead on the ground to be buried.

At least one of the grenade graduates had the Medaille Militaire conferred on him on the field of battle whilst several others received citations for the Croix de Guerre afterwards. All in all it was about the most successful graduating exercises that any class in the new infantry tactics has yet enjoyed.

It is in these new infantry tactics that the American troops are to be drilled upon their arrival in France. Well trained American troops from the regular army and militia, are expected to master one of these specialties.

TRUE CONDITIONS SHOWN IN NEW PICKFORD PICTURE

A vivid idea of the true cause for patriotism on the part of every American in connection with the great world war can be had from the new Mary Pickford-Arcraft picture, "The Little American", now appearing at the Arcade theatre. In producing this subject Cecil B. De Mille, the genius of screencraft, based his play on actual facts and carefully avoided exaggeration so often prominent in films of this nature. Every detail was staged only after it had received the endorsement of an authority and various experts on matter pertaining to the great war, were called in to collaborate in the presentation of different scenes. As a result the picture has been named as the most faithful reproduction of true conditions, by many who are in a position to judge.
