FILM AIDS RECRUITING

Army Officer Writes to Author, Telling How Young Men Join Uncle Sam's Legions After Seeing "Little American."

That "The Little American," the great Mary Pickford-Arcraft patriotic production, is one of the best aids to recruiting which the government has, is being demonstrated every day by the hundreds of letters received by the "Little American" herself, by Cecil B. De Mille, the producer, and by Jeanie Macpherson, the author of the story.

Miss Macpherson recently received a letter from Lieut. Jas. Douglas, Second Separate Troop, Louisiana Cavalry, now at the training camp on the border. Lieut. Douglas writes:

"We have placed a recruiting officer outside of the theater where "The Little American" is being shown and grab many young men as they come out after seeing this wonderful play. I don't know how soon we are going to the front, but if we ever reach the firing line, I wish that just before going into battle we could show "The Little American" to our boys, for I know they would then be in the right frame of mind to charge all the way up to Wilhelm's castle in Berlin.

"The story of yours has furnished the most opportune and inspiring play I have seen in years."—"Motography."

ROBERT WARNICK AND GAIL KANE AT ARCADE TOMORROW.

First a famous football star, second a rising young attorney with the world before him, third a broken spirited, broken-hearted tramp and fourth a man with a new hope flaming in his heart—these are the various steps in the progression of young Ramsdell from happiness to happiness. The story of this man's rise and fall and final rise is graphically and entertainingly told in "The False Friend," the new World-Picture Brady-Made which will be seen on Wednesday and Thursday at the Arcade theatre in this city. Robert Warwick portrays the character of Ramsdell. Gail Kane is seen in the role of the young woman who means all to Ramsdell and whose loss is one reason for his downfall. The story moves swiftly, from entertaining incident to entertaining incident, to the startling and unexpected climax. All the supporting members of the company are capable and splendidly cast. The whole production has been staged on a lavish scale. "The False Friend" is a thoroughly entertaining, thoroughly interesting production. See it.
