AMERICAN COAL MINERS NEEDED IN FRANCE

(By Wm. P. Simms, United Press Staff Correspondent)
With the British Armies in the field, July 25—(By Mail)—Sooner or later Lens, capital of France's "Black Country" or coal belt, will fall before the evertightening pressure put upon it by Sir Douglas Haig. When this day comes America can render France and her Allies no greater service than to send immediately to this region the experts necessary to put the coal mines in order in the shortest possible time.

For three years France has been deprived of the richest coal deposits she possesses. In the Loire, Burgundy, Nivernais, Gard, Blanz, d'Aubin, Decazeville and Carmaux, it is true there are coal mines but these are not to be compared with those in the northern part of the county, around Lens. This deposit runs from east to west, from Belgium to Flechinelle, in France and since the German occupation it is only the extreme western end of it which the French have been able to work. And this is the hardest to work, being deep below the surface. Whereas in Belgium the coal is practically on top of the ground, at Anzin it is 120 feet down and deeper the further west it runs. At Douai it is 480 feet deep; at Flechinelle about 1,800 feet.

The vein of coal from the Belgium frontier to Flechinelle is about 65 miles long by 10 miles wide. Prior to the war of the 39 millions of tons extracted from French soil, three-fifths came from here or about 25,000,000 tons. Even with this, France has always been compelled to buy from the outside almost as much coal again as she produced, half of which came from Belgium—from the country around Mons, Charleroi and Liege, seized by Germany as her very first act of war.

It is this country, around Lens and behind Lens to the east, which the Prussian warlords are defending regardless of the cost in German lives. And here it is that British pressure is growing ever stronger. Every blow struck this summer has yielded a net gain in the direction of these coal fields and a retirement anywhere from Arras to the sea would be more injurious to Germany from an economical point of view than at any other part of the western front.

Fighting in this country is extremely difficult. On the sea where British Tommies have recently made their appearance, there are sand dunes which make trenches almost impossible. Fighting there is like fighting in the Sarah Desert. Further south along the line is water, water everywhere, spread out over the flat country. Everybody knows what the country about Ypres is like, and around Messines Ridge while below that comes La Basse and Lens, with their mountains of slag and cinders, called "Crassiers" rising nearly 200 feet over the level country around about; and the "fosses" or mines, with mining buildings cluttered about them, all affording the best possible obstacles from the defender's viewpoint, hiding fieldguns, howitzers and especially machineguns.

Such is the country over which the British are now fighting. If the German are beaten back out of the coal country they will do as they have done already at Lens: Destroy the mines by blowing them up or flooding them, or both. But American miners are said to be the best to be had and certainly the United States can do no better than to send hundreds of them over here to reclaim the ruins for even if the Prussians do their work so completely as to render the mines useless for the remainder of the war, reconstruction of France and Belgium will depend largely on fuel supply.

SPRUCE INVESTIGATORS ARRIVE IN PORTLAND

Summer Complaint

During the hot weather of the summer months some member of almost every family is likely to be troubled with an unusual looseness of the bowels, and it is of the greatest importance that this be treated promptly, which can only be done when the medicine is kept at hand. Mrs. F. F. Scott, Scottsville, N. Y., states, "My first used Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy as much as five years ago. At that time I had a severe attack of summer complaint and was suffering intense pain. One dose relieved me. Other members of my family have since used it with like results." Adv.—8-1-17
