The Care Of The Hair---

The hair should be properly combed and brushed every day. Comb and brush should be kept scrupulously clean, and no other person should be allowed to use them. They should be sterilized by washing in boiling water occasionally. A shampoo once a week with will remove the accumulation of dirt and dandruff and keep the pores open. It will tone the hair bulbs and give the hair a silky lustre. Avoid wetting the scalp daily as it is detrimental to the growth of hair. It removes the natural greasiness and causes the hair to become dry and brittle.

A. D. S. SHAMPOO

We have everything needed for the care of the hair: Shampoo Bags, Soaps, Saponified Coconut Oil and all of the other well-known Shampoo Preparations.

We also have an excellent line of Combs and Brushes.

Humoring People Isn't Pleasant.
A writer in the Woman's Home Companion says:

"Humoring a man sounds like a pleasant and comfortable thing, but when one thinks humoring with the question of who makes the money it does not seem very flattering to the humorer or the humoree. And what a lamentable sight is that of the humoree, what deep inequality it implies and what an absence of any real respect or understanding between two people in whose lives humoring is a part of the daily routine! When the one to be humored is a woman it may mean that a man has been forced into the craven part of doing anything for the sake of peace. There are few concessions some men will not make to avoid a domestic storm. Some unfortunate men there are who even give up vital friendships, legitimate forms of recreation and even their own individualities in this unworthy cause."

Brahms in a Temper.
The late Johannes Brahms, the master musician, was easily enraged by fulsome flattery and effusive adulation. At a banquet given in Vienna in honor of Franz Liszt and Anton Rubinstein, Brahms carefully avoided the seats of the mighty and betook himself to the company of the younger musicians, seated "below the salt." But this strategic move did not protect him from an enthusiastic young pianist, relates a writer in the Etude, who had resolved to carry off trophies in the shape of a lock of hair from each of the lionine heads. Liszt and Rubinstein yielded with a good grace to this Delilah, but Brahms curtly refused. Slipping up behind his chair, she was just about to realize her wish when Brahms felt the cold point of the scissors and exclaiming "What arrant nonsense!" rose and left the banquet.

She Wanted to Know.
Food economists who delight in telling the American people what excellent dishes they can make out of odds and ends usually thrown into the garbage can remind us of the London society woman who went down into the slum districts teaching the poor folk how to make nice soups and stews out of bones and meat scraps so often thrown to the dogs. The coster women listened patiently for a long time, but at last jumped Sal Grogan—or was it Mrs. 'Emery 'Awkins?—and said:
"Now, look 'ere, liddy, hit's mighty nice o' yer to come down 'ere and tell us wot ter do with old bones and little bits o' cat's meat, but wot I wants to know is wot becomes o' the rest o' the hantmal. Who the ole boy gets that, and why should they?"—San Francisco Chronicle.

What's in a Name?
"What a narrow street that is!" said the visitor being shown about the suburban town by a citizen.
"Yes, it is narrow," replied the citizen.
"And in wretched condition. See the holes in the pavement?"
"Yes, it looks bad."
"And dirt everywhere. What is the name of that street?"
"That's Grand avenue."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.
