ELSIE BAKER COMING.

The attraction that is attracting more than usual attention is the appearance here of Elsie Baker, the famous singer. She is to appear at the Arcade for one evening, October 1, and will undoubtedly live up to the vast number of complimentary press notices that have appeared about her and her work.

Elsie Baker began her promising career in the church choirs of her native city, Philadelphia, and then came to New York where her rich contralto voice at once attracted attention. It is one of those rare contralto voices that enables its possessor to sing a wide number of roles and music of every known school.

Reserved seat tickets will be placed on sale in the near future for this attraction. Two other big attractions are billed to appear here this season and season tickets will be placed on sale for all three shows thereby enabling holders to make a saving on each attraction.

Peerless Five-Reel Screen Drama of New York Bohemian Life, That Has Friendship as Its Theme.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel in Moving Picture World

Love is only a good second to friendship in "A Square Deal", a five-reel Peerless screendrama on the World program that will be shown at the Arcade today and tomorrow. The scenes are laid in MacDougal Alley that short street just off of Washington Square where New York's bohemian element makes its headquarters. Two young chaps are in love with the same girl; one of the boys being a writer and the other the artist, and the friendship between them is unusually strong. Doris, the girl, prefers Mark, the writer; and Hugh, the artist, does everything in his power to help his rival. Success in his profession leads Mark away from Doris, and he makes an unfortunate marriage; but Hugh traps his friend's wife into revealing her true character, and Mark marries his old sweetheart—after divorcing the first Mrs. Dunbar.

Just how true a picture of life, as it is led in the Alley, may be found in "A Square Deal," need not concern the patron of the moving picture play. The drama is intended for those who want a clean story, plentifully sprinkled with sentiment and one that makes no pretence to furnishing food for thought. The doings of the men and women in "A Square Deal," are easily understood, although it is easier to admire Hugh's sacrifice than to believe in it. Another incident which comes under the same head is the scene at the society ladies' swimming match; also the method taken by Mark Dunbar's first wife to make him fall in love with her. She dons Annette Kellermanns, drive into the clubhouse tank in company with a number of other lightly clad society leaders and pretends to drown.

Scene from "A Square Deal" (Word) Mark jumps in, fully clothed, and rescues the lady, and she thanks him so warmly that he returns the compliment by taking her in his arms and she accepts him then and there. This scene would have been considered very daring a few years back, especially the costumes of the swimmers but, judging from the pictures taken of real society ladies at Palm Beach for the Sunday Illustrated Sections, they are not very far out of the way.

The production, directed by Harley Knoles, is equal to all demands, and
