GIANTS AND SOX INFIELDS TWO OF THE GREATEST By H. C. HAMILTON. (United Press Staff Correspondent. New York, Sept. 17.—Two of the

tightest fielding and smartest infields baseball has ever seen since the eruption that shattered the Athletics will be seen in opposed action when the Giants and White Sox mingle in the world's series. Each is balanced at second base by a fast thinker, a speedy, certain fielder, and a veteran of hard-fought championship games. Eddie Collins, prince of the second sackers, is field captain for the White Sox. Charley Herzog, McGraw's veteran of many campaigns, holds down the same job for the Giants.

Man for man, compared from every angle, the White Sox have an edge at infielding, despite the comparison that is always being made between McGraw's quartet and the slugging bunch that once performed for Connie Mack. Infields of the $100,000 sort have gone out of fashion since Mack used his axe, but the nearest approach to it since has been the aggregation thrown into the pennant fight by Charles Comiskey.

Gandiland Holke at first base, compares closely, despite Gandil's experience and an old reputation for heavy hitting. Like all the White Sox of former years and present days, Gandil's heavy bat has been lost. He is still hitting them regularly and is one of the games' most dangerous pinch hitters, but his .300 average has gone. Holke is the same sort of a hitter, but is more youthful. Their fielding offers nothing to favor either man. Each is steady under fire.

Comparisons never offered more in a world series than the respective merits of Charley Herzog, Giant second baseman, and Eddie Collins, the brilliant second baseman of the White Sox. A terrible hitter, speedy base-runner, brilliant fielder, and lightning thinker, Collins stands out as the greatest second baseman the game ever has known. Even now, after a period of batting depression, the former wonder of the old Athletics, is striding into .300 form with a vim that holds nothing good for the Giant pitchers.

Like all the great batsmen, Collins' work with the mace is natural. Hitting left handed pitching is only slightly more of a task for him than smashing the right handers. McGraw's trio of sterling southpaws will have little effect on his average, provided he plays in championship form. Collins has been accused this year of slowing up as a fielder and of playing stupid baseball, but this charge may be classed with the declaration that Ty Cobb was slipping. Ty slipped into the American League's batting leadership.

In Herzog the Giants have a second baseman the equal of Collins as a fielder and thinker. The clash of wits between this pair should be fully as interesting as the battle of bats. Herzog's batting falls far below Collins' mark, however, and it hardly can be said he exercises the same judgment in base running.

The best baseball in Herzog's career will come in the forthcoming series, if the injury to his back doesn't prevent. He is purely a fighter. The short series will bring every ounce of effort from his nervous body.

At shortstop the Giants have the edge, in experience, fielding ability and hitting. Fletcher's hitting will carry him over the rough spots where Risberg might stumble. Fletcher's fielding, liktwise tops that of the Coast graduate, mainly because he is more certain of himself.

Risberg specializes in long hitting. He has been hailed a coming national star, but hasn't yet attained that form. It was his acquisition, however, that supplied the championship form for the White Sox.

In Buck Weaver and Heinie Zimmerman it is difficult to reach a basis of comparison. The men are vastly different. Weaver is undoubtedly the better, faster fielder, and a faster thinker. Zimmerman's aggressiveness, heavy hitting and personality give him an edge over many infielders.

Zimmerman's batting punch, combined with that of Benny Kuff, will be the main reason for bets on the Sox. He is playing the best ball of his career and is holding his temper. Weaver is generally conceded to be the best third baseman in the American league. He is a good pinch hitter, fair base runner, and a brilliant fielder, but given to erratic throwing.

Has a High Opinion of Chamberlain's Tablets. "I have a high opinion of Chamberlain's Tablets for biliousness and as a laxative," writes Mrs. C. A. Barnes, Charleston, Ill. "I have never found anything so mild and pleasant to use. My brother has also used these tablets with satisfactory results."

Hot Lake Notes

Hot Lake, Or., Sept. 20.—(Special.)—Immediately Dr. Butler, his assistant physician, and Dr. Phy himself, had diagnosed the complaint, a hurry call was sent in to Portland for Dr. K. A. J. MacKenzie to operate on the Hot Lake medical superintendent. Dr. MacKenzie caught train No. 4 out of Portland Saturday night almost on the go, arriving at Hot Lake Sunday on schedule time. By 8:30 the operation was accomplished and train No. 17 being about one hour late, Dr. MacKenzie was able to leave for home,
