The Best Months to Paint

THE Fall months are now recognized as being the best time of all the year for painting. The Summer's sun has dried out the surface thoroughly.

The weather is more settled in the Fall than in the Spring—there are fewer cloudy, rainy days. This means less possibility of the paint being "pitted" by frequent showers such as occur in the Spring. A couple of coats of applied now, will protect your buildings against the rains, sleet and melting snows of Winter. It will seal up the pores of the lumber so that frost and moisture cannot penetrate. High Standard is the paint that will save you money—now and next time.

Low's Brothers HIGH STANDARD LIQUID PAINT

Ask for color card and information about Fall painting.
