REFUSED "ORDER OF THE BRITISH EMPIRE"

London, Sept. 29.—(By Mail.)—Will Thorn, one of the most prominent Labor members of the House of Commons, recently refused the new order of the British Empire, a number of which were bestowed by King George.

Thorn gave as his excuse for refusing the honor "personal reasons," but it may be significant that a few days later W. C. Anderson, M. P., in an address to engineers of Woolwich Arsenal, stigmatised the British government's awards of honor to Labor as attempts to influence the workingmen.

EVENING COAT OF UNUSUAL LINES

This unusual coat is of black chiffon, made on a foundation of white satin, and though very full about the shoulders is held in at the hem by a heavy double frill. The chief feature of this interesting wrap is the "manteau" back which is of chiffon heavily embroidered with gold and silver thread and thickly sewn with sequins. The cape and collar are outlined with bands of white fur.

O. A. C. -U. of I Game Interesting Contest

Those people who attended the intercollegiate football game in Pendleton Saturday between the Oregon Aggies and the University of Idaho, witnessed an interesting contest, especially if the fact is taken into consideration that neither team has been able to obtain but very little practice, due to the lateness of the opening of all Northwest schools.

The first quarter of the game was scoreless, O. A. C. being too eager and also too confident and were penalized several times while Idaho was playing a hard plucky game and made yardage several times in this quarter. The second quarter found the Orange and Black tearing the Idaho line to pieces with short quick jabs through the line and just outside of tackle, which resulted in two touchdowns being made in this quarter, one by the straight line plunges and the other by a perfect forward pass which was made when the backs had come in to help stop the line plunges.

O. A. C. scored two more touchdowns in the second half. The final score was O. A. C., 26; Idaho, 6.

The attendance at the game was hardly up to expectations but nevertheless not discouraging, and it is expected that this game will become an annual affair between the O. A. C. and some Northwest school. A banquet was served to the teams, coaches, managers and alumni of both schools in the evening, and after this a dance was given in honor of all visitors. A good many La Grande people attended both of these functions and reported an enjoyable time.

"GOD'S COUNTRY AND THE WOMAN" DRAWS ENORMOUS CROWDS

A "thriller" from the world go "God's Country and the Woman" held two full houses through eight reels of stirring drama at the Star theatre last night. Advertised as a film of action, the play lived up to all expectations. Fights, snow storms, dog teams, snow shoes all went to make up one of the most realistic and gripping tales of the Northwest ever produced.

The settings are beautiful as can only scenes taken from the Northlands be beautiful. The coming snow storm, driving across the lake, fairly makes one shiver. The dog team used in the picture is the world's champion team and its performance is as near perfect as any director could wish. As if they had acted before the camera all their lives these faithful servants go through their part without a hitch and end up with saving several lives and ending several others by their swift intervention.

WEST IS FAR FROM "WILD AND WOOLY"

Portland, Ore., Oct. 22.—It's perfectly safe to walk down the street of a western town without a brace of revolvers hanging at your hips. Bandits are few—probably not as numerous as in Chicago. Gambling dens and wild, all-night, booze-soaked dance halls are few and far between. If you don't believe this, ask John C. Albott of Portland.

Albott read in a prospectus of the Encyclopedia Britannica that Concord stage coaches were still in use in the west.

Defying the w. k. authority, Albott immediately wrote the encyclopedia publishers that "Easterners should revise their opinions about the west." "You have people in New York state who are more ignorant and primitive than those in any part of the west," he continued. "We do not have dead ones walking around these parts like you have in New York."

Albott opines that the publishers probably secured their opinion of the west from the movies.
