WE ASK YOU TO COMPARE MODART CORSETS Front Laced
WITH ANY OTHER CORSETS

We ask you to compare for—quality. We ask you to compare for—lines. We ask you to compare for—workmanship.

And when you have given it a thorough, impartial test by wearing it—we will leave it to your judgment whether or not there is any other front laced corset in the Modart class. We chose to specialize on the Modart Front Laced Corset, to feature it in our advertising, to recommend it to our customers—only after a thorough study and search of the corset field. And only after we were convinced that no other front laced corsets compared with Modart in quality and fine fitting features, did we choose them.

ARCADE
JACK PICKFORD AND PATTY ARBUCKLE AT ARCADE

Owen Johnson's world famous stories of Lawrenceville school, "The Varmint," which created a sensation both in magazine and in book form has been adapted for the screen by Paramount with Jack Pickford in the stellar role. As John Humberdink Stover, alias "The Varmint," Jack Pickford is an extremely sensitive and highly imaginative young man. Instantly christened "Dink" upon his arrival at the school, Stover tries to impress the fact upon his schoolmates that he is a wild young desperado for whom the law was never written. He confides the reasons for his having been expelled from the previous school—and these reasons vary every time they are given, running from putting asafetida in the stove to endeavoring to commit murder.

On the way to school he has stolen everything movable and he arrives with a splendid collection and the avowed intention of showing the school up. He is rebellious, ungovernable, and as glib as a two-year-old child in the hands of the older boys of the school.

He wins their instant hatred by committing the unpardonable blunder of asking for a second portion of prunes at his first meal—for if a single boy manifests the least approval of prunes there is danger of their being foisted upon the helpless diners with even more methodical regularity than is customary.

The boys sell him practically everything but the four walls of his room and fleece him of his possessions with great ease. There are many tragedies and not a few triumphs in the life of John Humberdink Stover who soon earns the soubriquet of the "Varmint" because of his pestiferous conduct and is almost driven to suicide when he loses a baseball game for his house team.

There awakens in his mind the firm belief that he is an all around coward when he immediately takes flight when threatened by two of the older boys, but by winning a desperate fight with one of them and making a touchdown at the crucial point of an important game, he re-establishes himself in popular favor and becomes a great leader among the fellows.

"The Varmint" will appear today and tomorrow at the Arcade Theatre.

On the same bill, Patty Arbuckle will gain more friends by his antics in his newest comedy, "O, Doctor!"

DIRECTOR OF "SNOW WHITE" FOR BILLIE BURKE

Billie Burke will soon be seen in this city in the first of her Paramount Pictures, "The Mysterious Miss Terry," a strangely charming production directed by the well-known director, J. Searle Dawley, who has been responsible for many of the Marguerite Clark productions which created such favorable comment, including the Famous Players production of "Snow White." This is the best picture the famous star has ever done, and in it she is supported by a cast of notable actors, including Thomas Meighan, recently seen in support of Pauline Frederick in "Sapho" and other Paramount Pictures.

"The Mysterious Miss Terry" is fully up to the Paramount standard and will undoubtedly prove one of the sensational releases of the season. This is one of the pictures you can't afford to miss. Everyone in the big cities has been talking about Billie Burke in "The Mysterious Miss Terry," which is coming to the Arcade Theatre, on Monday and Tuesday.

GLADYS HULETTE IN "THE CANDY GIRL"

Gladys Hulette, who is to be at the Star Theatre Saturday only in "The Candy Girl," a Pathé Gold Rooster play by Phillip Lonergan, says that there is one element which has much to do with the success of the play.

"It's the candy," Miss Hulette declares. "Pounds and pounds of candy have been used in this play. The children devour it eagerly, and the grown-ups are just as bad. Ill-tempered children and grouchy extra men brighten at once as soon as they munch a few mouthfuls of candy. I'm supposed to be the one who cheers them up, but it's really the candy."

But Miss Hulette is too modest. It isn't the candy but the charming little star, for she makes every one happy with whom she comes in contact.

If the landlord frowns upon you, or you lose your job, or your best girl is unresponsive to your ardent pleas, see Gladys Hulette in "The Candy Girl," and you may get a good idea of how to win out. She absolutely refuses to admit she is beaten and she never is.
