JACK O'NEILL IS READY TO MEET WORLD CHAMPION.

Jack O'Neill, The Local Champion.

Jack O'Neill last night tapered off his long siege of training for the big match by a good work out with Al Bridges, the local heavy-weight, and expressed himself as very well satisfied with his condition, saying that he never felt better in his life and was confident he would be able to entertain the champion for a while at least when time was called Friday night.

He will step on the mat at 173 or 174 pounds, somewhat under the weight he usually made for former matches.

As is well known to local sport lovers, O'Neill is modest and of a retiring disposition—never claiming that he can beat a man and always assuring his friends that they may depend on him for the best there is in him. His performances here in the past are a sufficient guarantee that he will do his very best when he faces the champion on Friday night at the Arcade theatre.

Good music and a good preliminary program has been arranged and altogether Friday night will be a "big night" and November 9 will long be remembered as a red letter day by lovers of clean athletics.

Henry Webber, Sante's manager and trainer, well known along the Coast as a wrestler, has consented to appear against some local wrestler. Pat Foley has consented to go on with Webber for a limited time if no one else can be induced to exchange toe holds with the big grappler.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and for years it was supposed to be incurable. Doctors prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Catarrh is a local disease, greatly influenced by constitutional conditions and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Medicine, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is a constitutional remedy; it is taken internally and acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system. One Hundred Dollars reward is offered for any case that Hall's Catarrh Medicine fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

know the old quotation about "a little child shall lead them," and if you are fond of children you will undoubtedly fall in love with little Bob White, who plays the leading role in the forthcoming George Behan picture, "LOST IN TRANSIT." This little boy, two and one-half years of age, almost takes the honors away from Mr. Behan, the star of the production. This child has been in "The Roadside Impression" in several scenes and screened so well that Mr. Behan selected him to play the child part in this new Paramount production.

"LOST IN TRANSIT" is one of those human little stories which has a real heart interest. As in some of his productions, Mr. Behan takes the part of an Italian who one day finds a small boy tucked among rags in his junk wagon, with a note reading: "Whoever finds this child may have him. Nobody wants him." Being lonely himself, the Italian adopts the boy, but at the same time another child had been lost and advertised for. Nicole, our friend, very nearly loses his bambino. It is around the incidents relative to the near loss of the child that "LOST IN TRANSIT" is built and we can truly say that having seen Mr. Behan's previous work you will surely enjoy this.

A talk with Mr. Behan discloses the fact that he considers this picture even better than "Frogmole" or in fact any of his other successes. You surely will want to see charming little Bob White as well as Mr. Behan. Yours very truly,

TANK CAPTURES PRISONER

Wandering Bosche Picked Up in "No Man's Land" By Crew.

(United Press.)
LONDON, Oct. 22.—(By Mail.)—This is the way a British tank crew took a prisoner. "One tank rolled down in the mud between the lines" said the Lieutenant, "and we slipped out into a nearby abandoned trench. We saw a Bosche wandering around all alone, apparently dazed, and pulled him to come in. There was such a roar of the guns he couldn't hear so one of the men went out to bring him in out of danger. He was in an awful state—trembling all over—but we gave him some cigarettes and he backed up."

Orchardists of Wood River are finding difficulty in securing enough apple pickers.

"MASTER OF HIS HOME"

Robert McKim who appears in the new Triangle play, "Master of His Home" starring William Desmond, has played heavy parts so many times that it has been suggested by some of his friends that he write a story on "The Fine Art of Professional Villainy."

McKim first came to the attention of Triangle patrons through his clever work as "Doc" Barry in "The Disciple" with William S. Hart, and has since appeared in similar roles in scores of Triangle successes. In "Master of His Home" McKim is seen in the role of Desmond's rival for the hand of the girl, played by Alma Rubin. As a typical member of the idle rich, a titled man of millions, he puts over one of the most convincing portrayals of his screen career. Despite the nature of the roles in which he is most frequently seen, McKim, off-stage, is anything but a villain in manner of conversation.

Perhaps the fact that his well-known screen "boss" comes under the category of "work" makes McKim the jovial well-to-do fellow he is without the makeup.

Others prominent in the cast of the new Desmond story are J. J. Dowling and Eleanor Hancock. The piece was written by R. Cecil Smith.

It will be shown at the Star today and tomorrow.

Strolling through Lester Street, at midnight, Prentice Tiller is startled by a man in a dark suit, who tells him that he is the same man who was seen in a photograph in a newspaper. Tiller follows the man, who is a "Red" ally, into which she has fled. Tiller offers to escort the girl to safety, and goes with her to another street in the vicinity, when the girl crosses her arms and tells Tiller not to spy upon her.

When the girl sees Tiller peering around the corner while she is talking to a suspicious looking man, she returns and chides her escort for not keeping his word. Tiller then invites
