LEONARD HAS LIGHTWEIGHT FIELD ALL TO HIMSELF

By H. C. HAMILTON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—There never was a time when fewer promising lightweights were scintillating around the country. The men who are believed to have a chance to topple Benny Leonard from his throne as lightweight champion are all men who have been battling for years and years. There isn't a man who came out over night.

Willie Jackson looked to be this sort of a man for a few brief moments, and then he flivvered. Jackson's name is rarely mentioned now as a probable opponent for the champion.

There is just one good boy who comes to mind among those who haven't yet been given a looking at the championship. He is little Billy Whalen, a St. Paul lightweight.

St. Paul has given so many high class fighting men to the game that it goes without saying Whalen is a plucky, hard-fighting little individual. Mike Gibbons trained the youngster through all his early days of battling, and the little fellow looks and acts like the St. Paul wizard.

Whalen hasn't been rushed to destruction. He is going through a course of sprouts that may lead him up to a championship battle. He had met some excellent boys and most of them he has won from. He is gradually growing into the select class of top-notchers.

And Whalen is the only lightweight of tender years who stands out as a probable opponent some of these days for the championship. Leonard evidently has overlooked this youngster in his policy of stepping out and cuffing ambition out of all the youngsters who look as if they might make some trouble.

Leonard declares there is little fighting in sight for him now, for he has gone to work as a boxing instructor at Camp Upton, Yaphank, L. I.

Benny came in for considerable criticism for the manner in which he kept away from this camp after receiving an appointment, but he has stepped into work now, according to reports.

Leonard announced immediately after he won the lightweight title that he would join some branch of service, so the criticism was coming his way when he didn't get into it.

Portland Wrestler Is Bested by the Champion at Marshfield

MARSHFIELD, Jan. 14.—(Special.)—Five hundred persons witnessed the wrestling match between Walter Miller, welterweight champion of the world, and Eddie O'Connell of Portland yesterday afternoon at the Noble theatre. Miller obtained two straight falls, in 56 and 17 minutes. The match was pleasing to the crowd, who, however, thought the first fall went too long.
