PRAIRIE ROSE HAS PART IN FAIRBANKS FILM

Prairie Rose who holds many medals for trick riding and roping appears in the new Douglas Fairbanks-Artcraft picture, "The Man From Painted Post," coming to the Arcade theatre tomorrow and Saturday. There are very few western contents such as the Pendleton Roundup, the Cheyenne Frontier Day celebration and the Golden City Show that do not feature Prairie Rose in their billing as "The West's Real Product." Rose is the wife of John Judd, champion rope spinner and broncho buster, who also plays an important part in Douglas' new photoplay of the western plains during the cattle rustling days.

"THE MEDICINE MAN"

Roy Stewart Stars in Five Reel Triangle Western Production.

(Reviewed by Edward Wetzel in Moving Picture World.)

play after all! This is proved in "The Medicine Man," a five-part Triangle production written by Jack Cunningham, in which Roy Stewart and Ann Kronan are the bright and shining lights. The nature of their doings is neither novel nor particularly thrilling, but they are both such natural and likable human beings that everything connected with their affairs is of interest. Roy Stewart who comes nearer to realizing the big, openhearted, uneducated Westerner of fiction than any man acting on the screen, makes Jim Walton seem so real that his character study alone is accountable for 50 per cent of the picture's good points. Ann Kronan as Edith Strang must be credited with 25 per cent more, the story easily supplying the remaining merit marks necessary to its success.

Jim Walton, the sheriff of El Dorado, discovers that Joe Malone has found pay dirt in an abandoned mine. The owner of the mine is a sixteen-year-old girl, who arrives in El Dorado as the daughter of a traveling medicine faker. The quick doctor discovers her, when a little child, lying beside the dead bodies of her father and mother out on the desert. He has been good to the child, but, after arriving in Walton's town, enters into an agreement with Malone to cheat Edith out of her property. This is where Jim takes a hand in her affairs and does so well for them both that Edith gets her mine and Jim gets Edith. Nothing

CITY COMMISSION TO REGULATE HOTELS

Detention Ward For Women Prisoners to Be Prepared—City Books Audited—Report of City Manager.

The regular commission meeting was held last night. City Attorney J. D. Slater was instructed to prepare an ordinance regulating hotels and rooming houses. This was made in order to have some means of controlling questionable places.

Additional city legislation relative to the collection of past due improvement assessments, the matter of preparation of a detention ward for women prisoners will also be prepared. It has been decided to fit up a room in the court house where women prisoners can be given proper attention and be completely isolated from other prisoners. Plans for this are being prepared and construction is to begin at once.

The report of the special auditor, C. M. Lockwood, was filed with the commission, showing the accounts of the city had been properly kept.

The City Manager's report follows: The Honorable Commission, City of La Grande, Gentlemen:

I herewith submit my report for the week ending January 29:

Fire chief reports fire at 2713 North Fourth street. The department found the roof to be in flames and before the fire could be subdued considerable damage was sustained. 450 feet of hose was used. Nine startlingly new in the story, but relieved by many touches of the better side of human nature and, as already stated, excellently well played by Roy Stewart and Ann Kronan. Faithful character types are also found in the Seth Hopkins of Percy Challenger; the Joe Malone of Aaron Edwards; the Luther Hill of Carl Ulman, and the Doc, Hamilton of Wilbur Higbee. The picture was directed by Cliff Smith, and Alvin H. Nietz wrote the scenario.

"The Medicine Man" will be shown at the Star theatre today and tomorrow together with a Triangle comedy and orchestra music.
