RUMANIAN QUEEN CHEERS WOUNDED

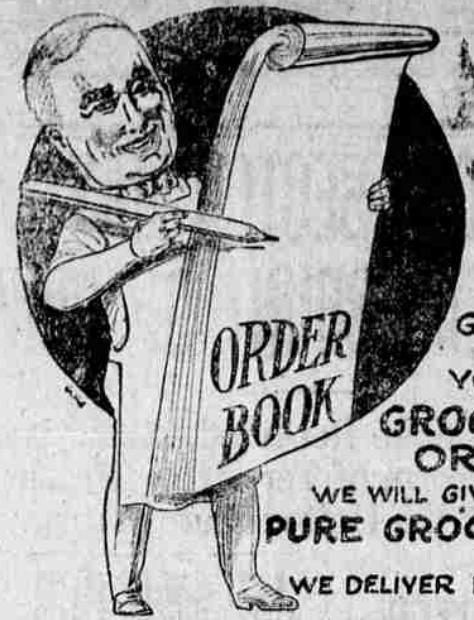

Few wounded Rumanian soldiers there are in the hospitals of that stricken country who have not cheered with Queen Marie. Practically every day she is on a tour of some hospital, going from bed to bed talking to the wounded men and cheering them up. The picture shows her giving a wounded subject an autographed photograph.

ARCADE

Roy Stewart at Arcade Tomorrow.

Roy Stewart, the young Triangle player who has made many friends through his work in pictures that have appeared here in the past, will be seen at the Arcade on Sunday in a new production called "The Learnin' of Jim Benton."

Jim Benton, ranch owner, was unable to read or write. During a struggle with the sheep men of his valley he meets Evelyn Hastings, a school teacher, whom he persuades to open a school for his children and himself. The sheepmen close the dam which controls the water for Benton's cattle and he has to take the law into his own hands, promising Evelyn that he will shoot only in self defense. In the fight at the gate house, Jim's hat is clipped by a bullet, and in the action of his own gun he kills the deputy sheriff. In the unfair trial he is convicted of murder by a sheepmen's jury and the town is put under martial law to prevent an outbreak. Evelyn arrives with a pardon just as the trap is to be sprung and big Jim wins freedom and the girl who taught him to read the laws.

WALLACE REID, MONDAY

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is cataract. Cataract being greatly influenced by constitutional conditions requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Cataract Medicine is taken internally and acts thru the Blood on the Muscular Surfaces of the System thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in the curative powers of Hall's Cataract Medicine that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. W.M. HART AT THE STAR

William S. Hart photoplays of the sort Thomas H. Ince is making for Artcraft always can be depended upon to provide an entertainment in which the elements of romance and adventure are foremost. In his newest screen effort, "The Silent Man," shown at the Star today, Sunday and Monday, admirers of this foremost delineator of western characters will find Jim in a setting affording rich opportunity for the display of his exceptional talent. "The Silent Man" reveals Hart in the character of a miner who has struck "pay dirt" and who has come into a small border town for the purpose of registering his claim. Just how the matter is resolved of his mine through the connivance of a government clerk, and how he regains possession of his property and incidentally wins the heart and hand of a very charming and pretty young girl, are interestingly shown during the unfolding of the story.

RETRIBUTION

"Somewhere in France at the close of each day New mounds will be seen, made of war's reddened clay; And the ones who are sleeping beneath these small domes Will ever be missed in America's homes.

They cannot come back—we may not go there. Yet the memories we cherish will ever be fair; They have fought for their loved ones, for freedom and right; To save our fair Nation from dominant blight.

So let us as parents, be brave as we may. As they have been brave in saving the day; That the youth who may follow their journey through life May never be cursed by such unprincipled strife.

Let us hope the result of this ruthless war Will banish forever Autocracy's power; And let us proudly our banner of freedom unfurl Over Democracy's plains and a Christ-loving world.

—David Wallace Beck.

He treats Mollie brutally after the first blush of honeymooning, then slays one of his own kind and escapes across the border to Canada. The year that passes teaches Mollie some things about mankind she never knew before. One was to appreciate Constable Calloun of the Royal Mounted Police, who occasionally called on her, as a real friend. But though their mutual regard for each other ripens finally into love, Mollie remains true to her husband. When he turns up again, she exacts a promise from Calloun, on the strength of his love for her, that he will not harm Clark until the latter strikes the first blow. See what happens when that blow is struck—at Sherry's today only.

For Hard-to-fit Women

Some women are hard to fit in corsets; some just think they are.

There are certain types of figures, however—full bust and small hips, small bust and large hips, short stout figures—that require special designing in corsets.

In MODART Front Laced Corsets there are special sizes and models for just such figures. We can give any woman, of whatever size or shape, the kind of style and fit she should have.
