

BRITISH RAID ON GERMAN U-BASES

This diagram shows what the British did in their night raid on the German submarine bases and ship centers. Ostend (1) and Zeebrugge (2) are the coast cities attacked by the British naval forces. British blocking ships loaded with concrete were sunk in the canal entrances at both Ostend and Zeebrugge to bottle up the bases. Other results of the raid are shown by the diagram.

NEW RECORD FOR SHIPS.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(By United Press.)—A total output of 240,000 tons of new shipping for the month of April was reported to the Shipping Board today by Commissioner of Navigation Chamberlain. Two-thirds of the tonnage was constructed during the last half of the month.

At that rate the output for the year will approach three million tons, but Shipping Board officials look forward to much higher totals as building gets under way. The best previous month was June of last year, when 228,184 tons were built. The total in March was 166,700 tons.

STOLE BAND OF SHEEP.

BAKER, May 1.—A band of 69 sheep, owned by William Pollman, were driven off from the latter's ranch in the valley north of the city some time night before last. The loss was not discovered until morning, when the matter was reported to Sheriff Anderson, who about 10 o'clock in the morning, located the sheep in the hills about four miles east of the Pollman ranch. No one was with them at the time. No arrests had been made up to last evening, but several well defined clues were left which will probably result in the suspected party being soon rounded up.

LA GRANDE HAS FEW FIRMS OPERATING THAT LENGTH OF TIME.

Interesting History of Progress is Noted in Entirely New Line of Endeavor.

La Grande is, comparatively speaking, a young community in term of years. Wallamette Valley points are measured by, and not a great number of business institutions are now operating under the same proprietorship and management that they did 15 years ago.

W. H. Bohnenknp Co., Max Bloch, The Model, N. K. West, J. H. Peare and L. C. Smith—these are a few of them.

Looking over the business concerns of the city's directory as it now stands, one discovers some mighty interesting history in connection with the development of these long-time institutions. For instance, there is L. C. Smith, auto garage man.

L. C. Smith came to La Grande a "kid" fifteen years ago with very little money. He worked for Jay Van Buren for a time, as a mechanic, but soon managed to get enough money saved to lay in the barest necessities to run a bicycle repair shop. His first shop was on Elm street in a small 10 x 12 room and no money in the bank.

Business sagacity, unusual far-sightedness, hard work and a rapidly spreading reputation for fairness and honesty, made it possible for him to erect, eight short years later, a fine brick plant on Fifth street, and soon afterwards to double the capacity of the institution until today he has one of the largest garages in this section of the state. Thus from nothing 15 years ago to a well-established, financially strong institution at the present date is his enviable record.

Unquestionably one of the reasons for his business growth is the fact of close study and hard application to details. His patrons say another reason for his success is his ability to pick a winner commodity.

Mr. Smith admits that since boyhood he has had an ambition to attain a reputation which stamp him authority on picking commodities, so that when he gave his approval to any line, that his patrons would be able to trust in his judgment. In short to become an authority—a bureau of advice, advice upon which his patrons could wholly depend. His patrons declared he has attained that goal. How well he has succeeded, his present business enterprise is convincing proof of.

He is essentially a self-made man and his career in business is not only creditable to himself but to the community in which he carved his way to business success.

BRITISH LOSSES FOR APRIL
LONDON, May 1.—British casualties published during April showed 1633 officers killed, 4841 wounded and 2459 missing; 8189 men killed, 35,364 wounded and 814 missing.
The total of 53,290 casualties is the largest since January when there were 74,038. The March casualties were 14,588 and the February casualties 19,492. It is believed that neither the March nor April casualties included the total resulting from the German drive.
The figures given, 814 men missing, is out of all proportion to the number of officers reported missing and may be an error in cabling.
