SHERRY'S

EXCELLENT NIGHT PHOTOGRAPHY IN "HESPER OF THE MOUNTAINS" AT SHERRYS

The lightning effects in the Blue Ribbon Feature, "Hesper of the Mountains," to be shown at the Sherry Theatre last showing today are excellent in every instance.

This Vitagraph production is staged in the great mountains and numerous opportunities for clever lightings are offered. The dim shadows thrown by the lamps and lights on the miners' caps are shown clearly in a number of cases. Besides the attractive lighting effects, the photography is first-class and the film runs smoothly through its course, now calling for a bit of humor and for not a little excitement.

In fact, throughout, "Hesper of the Mountains," is worthy to be released under the Blue Ribbon trademark.

And Bill Hart in "Dakota Dan," the Two Reel Thriller, a program that is surely satisfying.

ARCADE

MINISTERS PRAISE CARMEL MEYERS' PLAY

Ministers throughout the country have joined in urging their parishioners to have all children, especially the boys, just coming into maturity to see the photoplay "The Marriage Lie" which will be shown at the Arcade Theatre on Thursday only. The heroine of the picture is the daughter of a gambler. When her father dies she is left without a cent. Before long she is on the verge of starvation.

According to the clergy the growing boys appear to have the idea that a professional gambler always has money and is well to do. This is the reason they want the parents to send their growing sons to see the picture and disabuse the minds of the boys that the life of a gambler is a money-making calling. The clergy believe that the growing boys may be taught through this picture and others like it that gambling is not a lucrative following and that when this is driven home the boys will eschew all forms of gambling.

SEVEN REEL FEATURE AND REMARKABLE WAR FILM

In Triangle's great seven-reel feature play, "A Soul in Trust," featuring Belle Bennett, a peculiar superstition is revealed. The necro-mummy announces, "I loved I heard a screech owl last night, saying, 'Trouble, trouble,' and here the bridegroom done seen the bride in her wedding dress 'fore do marriage." A laugh follows these words, but a grim tragedy is the sequence.

"A Soul in Trust" sweeps from the tragic significance of the omen uttered by Mummy Judy to a story of sorrow and intrigue over which hovers the spirit of fear expressed by the devoted servant. Few plays have had such gripping and absorbing qualities as this seven-reel feature. With such masterful portrayers of emotion as Belle Bennett, J. Barney Sherry and Darroll Foss, "Triangle" may be said to have achieved a production of tremendous artistic importance.

"A Soul in Trust" will be shown at the Star theatre on Thursday and Friday night.

BABY ARRIVES ON DAYLIGHT TIME

Hour Saving Government Regulation Kept by the Stork.

That even the Stork is observing government regulations was demonstrated today when Mrs. Allen Byers, formerly Miss Nora Gray of La Grande, arrived from Nampa, Idaho, and was met at the train by Dr. Bacon who accompanied her to the Grande Ronde hospital where an hour later an eight and one-half pound daughter saw the light of day and began to make her announcements as give commands in her own way. Mrs. Roy Frazier of Boise accompanied Mrs. Byers. The mother and child are doing fine.

MULTIMILLIONAIRE CHOOSES HOME IN TENEMENT DISTRICT

HARRY L. DOHERTY

Though he possesses millions, Harry L. Doherty prefers to live in a tenement district rather than a Fifth-av mansion. He has abandoned his uptown residence to live in an old-fashioned house on the corner of Bridge and Broad-sts. in a tenement district at the fall-end of Manhattan. The inside of the rickety-looking hovel, however, has been fitted up with all the luxuries and conveniences of a $30,000 a year duplex apartment.

HONEST POLICY IS BEST IN CIRCUS BUSINESS

With the Al C. Barnes four-ring trained annual circus, which will exhibit in La Grande on May 25, it is always the patrons who are first considered, believing that the show's interests will best be conserved by caring for those who patronize it. Courteous treatment for all has always been the maxim of the Barnes show and it always will be.

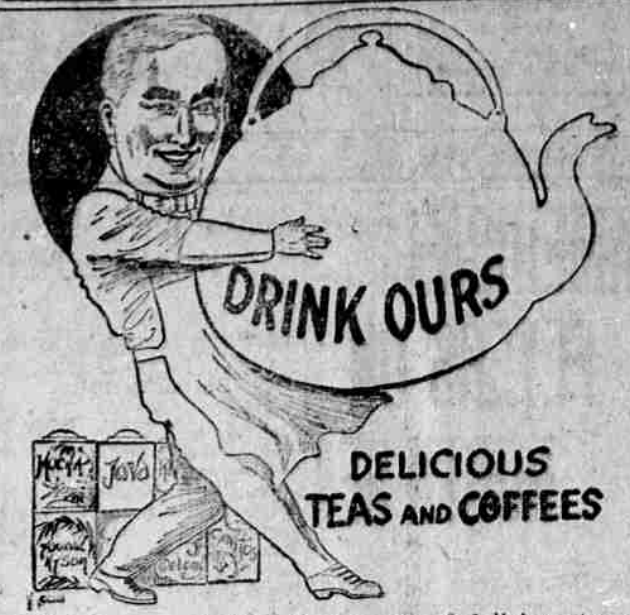

For the benefit of the women and children who visit the shows, uniformed ushers are in attendance to answer all questions and to see that they are comfortably seated in the large tent and that they are properly cared for as they visit every department. There is absolutely nothing left undone that can be done for the visitors, and the policy adopted by Al C. Barnes when he organized the show, to protect patrons, has been adhered to ever since and always will be.

Recently, when talking about the show that bears his name, Mr. Barnes said:

"I have always made it a point to so conduct my shows that each time I return to a city my welcome will be more cordial than the previous visit. I want the friendship of the public and not their money, unless I can give them exactly what I promise to give them and a little more. The idea that the people of the country like to be humbugged is all wrong. They do not. They will sympathize with a show owner if trouble overtakes him and overlook that which cannot be avoided, but they will not stand to be deceived. It stands a showman to be honest with his patrons just as much as it does the merchant. The day when fly-by-night shows could come to a city, take out the money and give nothing in return, is past. Why I have to laugh when I hear people tell about such things. I have always found that honesty is the best policy, and, believing this, I shall adhere to it as long as I'm in the show business. When I have to resort to dishonest methods, either in advertising or otherwise, then I'm going to get out of the game and stay out. I want everybody to realize that my show is their show and if there is the least cause for complaint at any time I want my patrons to tell me about it and I'll thank them for telling me."

DELICIOUS TEAS AND COFFEES

What is more inviting than a cup of delicious tea or rich fragrant coffee.

We take a special pride in our coffees and teas, because we know they are carefully selected, and properly blended.

There is a superiority about our teas and coffees, that you will find when you drink them, and though they may cost you a few cents more per pound, they cost you less per cup—because you don't use so much—it's the quality.

BUY BETTER TIRES!

The pleasure of a whole trip is spoiled if you have to stop and repair tires. When you hear the story of a million mile guarantee or the tire that is as good as a Good-year, then shut your eyes and think of yourself sweating beside the hot dusty road this summer.

Goodyear Tires Are Better

No one questions Goodyear tires. Their quality is too well known. Their popularity is due to the service they give. They cost no more. Insist on having them.
