

The Joy of Life

"A great deal of the Joy of Life consists in doing perfectly, or at least to the best of one's ability, everything which he attempts to do. There is a sense of satisfaction, a pride, in surveying such a work—a work which is rounded, full, exact, complete in all its parts—which the superficial man, who leaves his work in a slovenly, slipshod unfinished condition, can never know. It is this conscientious completeness which turns work into art. The smallest thing, well done, becomes artistic."

Perfection in anything can only be accomplished through a proper regard of small details. There are hundreds of little things that go to make for perfection in the drug business. No drug store sells better goods than we do and none provide more satisfactory service and prices.

MILL FEED IS NOT TO BE HAD

LOCAL CONCERNS HAVE GROUND OUT ASSIGNED QUOTA AND CLOSED DOWN.

Shortage of Output Will Work Hardship on Those Who Depend on This Source of Supply

Mill feed is no longer to be had and there will probably be no further supply until the grinding begins on the new crop of wheat. There is still some wheat left at the mills, but all of them have now ground out the quota assigned to them by the government and there is nothing left to do but close down.

It is not known what will be done with the wheat now on hand, as it is at the disposal of the government. It may be shipped away and turned over to mills that have not supplied their quotas and there is a slight possibility that it will be given an extension on the limit heretofore placed. In that case grinding would be resumed and a supply of mill feed would again be available. But all present prospects indicate that the feed supply will be out of the question until the beginning of another season.

About the same situation prevails all through this section of the country. Mr. Merton Kiddle, of the Pioneer Flour Mill at Island City, has just returned from a trip through the Walla Walla and Dayton sections and he says all the mills in that country have finished grinding the amounts assigned to them, although Mr. Kiddle says: "They had more wheat over there to begin with than we had here and they still have a relatively greater quantity still on hand. They are just like we are here in the matter of the left over quantity and do not know just what directions they may receive as to disposal of the remaining wheat."

It is said some of the Wallowa mills still have a little left to grind.

Works A Hardship. To a large number of people who have depended on mill feed for chickens, pigs and cows, the sudden shut off in the feed supply is a hardship. There seems to be but little chance for a feed supply, although the surplus of cheap potatoes will likely help some in the matter of hog feed.

Anyway, it has now come down to a strict matter of "Hooverizing" for the domestic family, as well as for the people.
