ling Team of La Grande, which is composed of Norma Mager, Merle George, Gertrude Garner, Beth Hoesey and Wagona Lyman, under the supervision of Miss Murphy, demonstrated the Gold-Pack method of canning fruits and vegetables. This is not one person's method; the method used by one group of people, but the easiest, quickest, safest and most economical process which is advocated by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, which is one of the most dominantly telling forces in our government today.

Strawberries were canned with the thin syrup, and 16 minutes used for the final sterilization. Tomatoes were blanched and cold dipped, peeled, packed and sterilized in 20 minutes, and the greens were processed in the same way, except that the latter was sterilized 2 hours.

Flat sour, the commercial name for the acid condition so prevalent in canned vegetables is sometimes a result of allowing the vegetables to stand, before canning—sometimes improper sterilization and sometimes bad lids.

Miss Murphy is leaving some bulletins in the county agent's office on Home Canning of Fruits, Vegetables and Meats, which the housewives may obtain by calling for them.

FOR CONSTIPTION AND BILOUSNESS Good digestion goes far toward comfort and health in hot weather. Undigested food in the stomach can quickly poison the system. Geo. Jenner, 416 Labor St., San Antonio, Tex., writes: "Foley Cathartic Tablets have proven the best laxative I have taken and I recommend them to anyone suffering from constipation or biliousness. They should be in every traveling man's grip." Quick relief for sick headache, bloating or other condition caused by bad indigestion. Sold everywhere.—Adv.

More Styles in Service Garments

Women are swarming into new activities to meet the needs of industry and to release men for service at the front. These war times call upon every individual to do some kind of work, excusing only the very old or the very young from active service. And women are acquitting themselves like men. They are getting down to business in uniforms scientifically designed to meet the requirements of the various kinds of work they have undertaken to do, and to meet their own sense of fitness. Many a smart uniform proclaims that its wearer is doing her bit by discharging the duties of some man who is "over there"—or on the way.

For the factory or farm or garden there are overcoats and service suits like those shown in the picture. They prove to be immensely convenient for house work, and for outings in the woods or mountains there is nothing so comfortable and satisfactory as the service suit. For tramping, climbing and fishing it has any outfit that includes a skirt discredited; there is no comparison between them for convenience.

For work that does not demand breeches or bifurcated skirts there is a service suit like this except that it has a skirt. All these suits are made of Warren Jenn material in khaki color. Caps and hats to match are made to be worn with them.

Smart society women who have dedicated their cars and services to the government have donned a tunic uniform for driving them. Girls who are replacing young men as ushers in the theaters are uniformed in spirited coat and breeches suits with puttees and dashing little caps. Women serving in canteens like to be uniformed, Red Cross workers don cap and apron—everywhere the service garment is worn as a proud badge of duty fulfilled.

Cheerful Looking Umbrellas. Why should we look dull on a rainy day? We can be cheerful-looking even to our umbrella now, for the colored silk umbrella for rain or shine is to be popular this summer. This combination umbrella and parasol offers protection from sun and shower alike. Some of these umbrellas have ivory tips and ferrules to match the handles.

Careful Housekeeper. My sister was invited over to a friend's house for dinner. After she was through eating, she folded her napkin up. Her friend's little boy seeing her fold it up, called out: "Oh, never mind, my mother ironed them out before she uses them again!"—Exchange.

Miceless Books. Mice can be kept away from books with ease if pieces of gum camphor are laid near them on the shelves.

TWINS IN WAR. Officers Have Hard Time To Identify Two Brothers.

By Fred S. Ferguson. (United Press Staff Correspondent.) WITH THE AMERICAN FORCES IN PICARDY, June 17.—(By mail.)

—When you go to war twice at the same time in the same outfit maybe you can consider you really are going to do your part to whip the Boche. At least Walter and Albert Grieson are inclined to feel that way about it. The only way it can be done, however, is to be a twin.

Walter and Albert are twins. Their father and mother live at 3312 Luean Avenue, St. Louis. And if Mr. and Mrs. Grieson think they had a hard time telling Walter and Albert apart when they were little, they ought to see the sergeant and company commander try it. After you know how to identify the twins it's easy. Walter (or is it Albert?) has a mole on one foot. But the sergeant can't tell the twins to take off their shoes every time he wants to pick out one of them for some particular job. The result is that Walter and Albert are fighting the war both together and separately, for themselves and for each other, and in addition they are—and also is—carrying on a mail courtship.

Do The Girls Know. They are writing Glendine and Geraldine Smalley, who live in Sheldon, Ill. Glendine and Geraldine are twins. Walter or Albert is writing Glendine and Albert or Walter is writing Geraldine.

Walter, or Albert—anyhow one of the twins—first told the story as he sat in the window of the United Press billet one warm evening in Picardy. Wagons, guns and camions were rolling and rumbling by. The twins are with an engineering outfit and it was too early yet for them to set out for their work of stringing wire, and digging trenches and dugouts. As Walter, or Albert, talked of Delmar, the bridge, the river and other things of home, the other one came up. I was like seeing double. Their tin hats were even at the same angle.

Nobody Knows Difference. "You see, it's like this, said Albert. "When Walter"—that identified Albert—"when Walter is working and is tired, and I'm fresh I slip out and relieve him, and nobody knows the difference. Then, if I get tired, he comes out and relieves me, and so long as one of us is where one or the other is supposed to be—well, there you are."

No one in the company knows one from the other. On one occasion a new sergeant was in charge of the detachment working in a dugout. Albert and Walter were working from opposite sides. Just Walter left the dugout with a wheelbarrow filled with dirt. Albert left the other end of the runway and came down another path with his empty. The sergeant didn't know there were two of them. Every time he looked up he saw a Grieson loading and starting off with a wheelbarrow. The sergeant figured this man Grieson was doing twice as much work as any other man on the job, and went to the lieutenant to tell him about it. Then he learned there were two of them. They Worked in Banks. Before enlisting in the army together the Griesons worked in different banks in St. Louis. It so happened that each was at the passbook window in his respective bank. Depositors with accounts in both banks began to consider taking the pledge if they went from one bank directly to the other, until they learned how things stood. The sergeant and the company commander have given it up. They assign Albert and Walter to work, and so long as a Grieson is there, that is good enough. The twins are over here because they want to help win the war. They are not yet 21. Therefore, they would not have been drafted, but they are doing the war double.
